New Trier: Different and Amazing

SIX NEW TRIER STUDENTS FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES PROVIDE A UNIQUE INSIGHT INTO AMERICAN EDUCATION AND LIFE.

The North Shore is inhabited by people of many backgrounds and persuasions. Most of them, however, have been Americans for several generations, and consequently view their country, society, and schools as insiders. They are frequently oblivious to the advantages and disadvantages of their way of life because they have nothing radically different with which to compare it. For this reason, ECHOES 1962 has asked New Trier's foreign students for their impressions of our way of life in order that we may more clearly see ourselves and our differences and similarities with other peoples.

Anne-Marie Späth is visiting New Trier for her Senior year and is from Munich, Germany. José Padron is from Caracas, Venezuela. Four students connected with the American Field Service exchange program are also living on the North Shore with American families. They are: from Lyon, France, Martine Jeune; Ida Nawawi from Bogor, Indonesia; Hans Biffel from Vienna, Austria; and Sefik Yuksel from Istanbul, Turkey.

The American educational system was entirely new to all our foreign visitors. European schools are considerably more stringent academically than ours at the university preparatory level, since only the intellectually superior continue on to college. It was a great surprise to the foreign students that approximately 90% of New Trier's students go on to college. Hans remarked that this fact points up the more democratic nature of the American school system in that it provides education for everyone and in that it reflects the American obsession for equality. It also forces America and New Trier to deal with the problem of an educational system tailored to the needs of all degrees of intellectual ability. All the visitors were impressed with the New Trier system of dividing courses into five levels of difficulty.

That the students in high school are free to choose their courses according to their individual interests was a new concept to the foreign students. Ida told her ECHOES interviewer that Indonesians pursue 16 subjects per year and that government regulations require every student to have had at least six years of English before graduation. In Europe common New Trier electives such as economics and typing are taught only at special schools and most students do not have the opportunity to take them. Martine and Anne-Marie were astonished to find that American students, on the whole, can type as well as they write, and they said that at home they would never have handed a teacher a typewritten assignment. One of the girls also made a sly remark about the legibility of American handwriting, which, she felt, suggested a possible reason for the emphasis on typing.

Martine took a dim view of the typical spelling ability of her New Trier classmates. She was surprised and amused to find that she received one of the highest grades in her senior English class on a spelling test. This is partially the result of the spelling incongruities in the English language and of the fact that a foreign student of English is apt to pay more attention to these incongruities than a native American who has been conditioned to pass over these "trivia" without thinking about them. It is more the fault, however, of the lack of emphasis by New Trier on the study of the English language. Martine said that French students spend much more time studying the French language than New Trierites spend studying theirs.

The European students were also asked what they thought of their American friends' peculiar way of slaughtering French and German in their feeble attempts to make the visitors feel at home. Hans and Anne Marie said they were impressed by the enthusiasm and accomplishments of New Trier students of the German language, but they were very amused by their pronunciation of the German "r." Hans complained that many non-German speaking Americans seem to think that Austrians speak a different language than the Germans. Martine had many words of praise for the New Trier French department, saying that the third and fourth year students were acquiring a very good command of her language with excellent accents.

The European students admitted that their previously held impression (apparently a typical one in Europe) that American high school students do little, if any, homework and lead at best a shallow life academically, has drastically changed. Martine said that her New Trier work load was somewhat easier than her required French curriculum of three years of physics and chemistry and five years of math. But both she and Anne Marie said that despite the casualness and informality of the school life, New Trier students do work hard, especially in courses on the 4 and 5 levels which correspond in difficulty to those in the European preparatory schools.

Is the New Trier curriculum with its overtones of informality and its de-emphasis on rugged academics better or poorer than those programs which confronted these students in their own countries? Most of them agreed that the New Trier system has definite advantages. They mentioned that the students here seem to be more vitally interested in their courses because they themselves choose the subjects in accordance with their individual interests. Both Hans and

Mr. Knupfer illustrates his point in a U.S. History class. The foreign students were impressed by the helpfulness and objectivity of their NT teachers. (M. Steinberg)

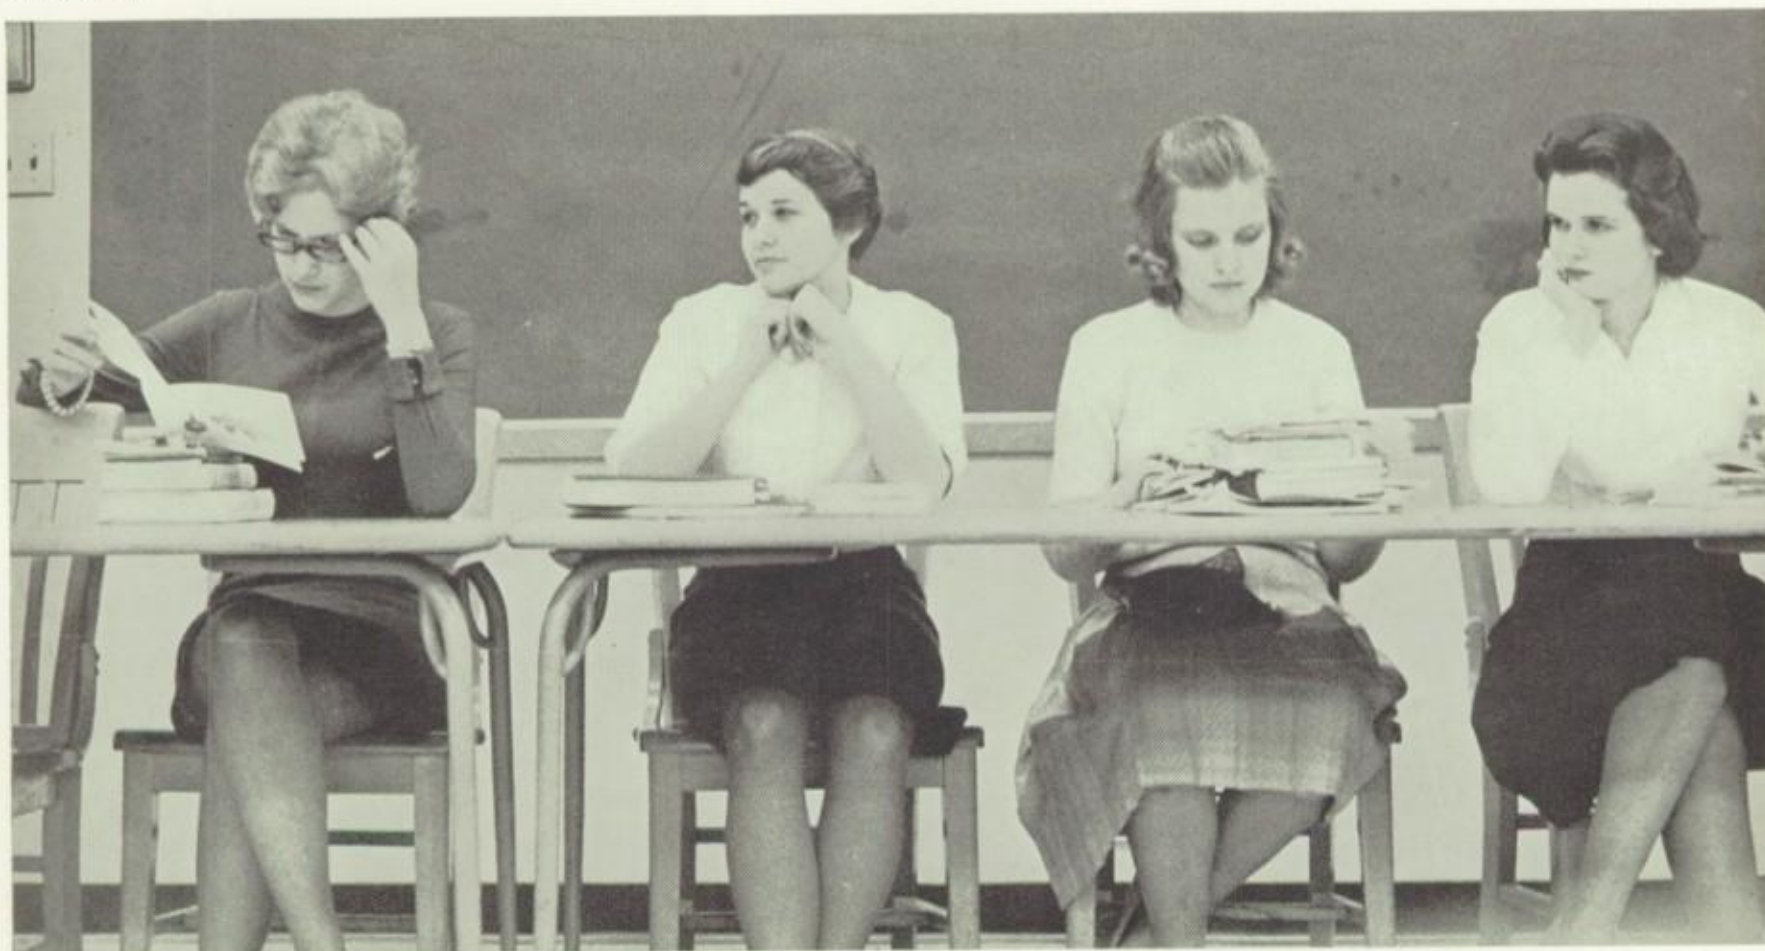

Martine felt that their New Trier classmates work more enthusiastically and imaginatively, especially in science. Hans said that his physics course in Vienna was nearly all lecture and very little lab. The New Trier physics course includes three periods weekly of lecture and four periods of lab. Martine remarked that she had performed fewer dissections during her Lyonnaise biology course and that she had been spared the traditional New Trier lab experience of cutting planaria into little pieces to prepare them for regeneration.

All the foreign students took courses in United States history. Anne Marie made a remark about a surprising facet of the course that a native American would probably not have noticed. When ECHOES asked her if the attitude to-

Students do research in a corner of the school library. Anne-Marie Spath commented that the New Trier library is excellent. In her German school, only several hundred books were available for the students. ward some particular phase of American politics is outstandingly different when taught here than in Germany, she answered that to German eyes the textbook used in the New Trier course would seem very pro-imperialistic because it takes the stand that America's so-called "imperialistic" policy was carried out in the name of humanitarianism. This approach was a foreign one to her. Ida reported the same bewilderment.

The most interesting and outstanding difference, however, between the two varieties of school systems seemed to be in the relationship between the student and his teacher. The New Trier, and presumably the American, attitude is one which stems directly from the American characteristic, noted by all six of the visitors, of the greater informality and fewer traditional social barriers between people of different backgrounds and occupations.

In describing foreign student-teacher relations, Hans told ECHOES that it would be impossible in Austria for a teacher to meet socially with his students or their families. When a school teacher accidentally finds that one of his friends' sons or daughters is in his class, the social contact between teacher and student, previously strong, is temporarily suspended until the student leaves the class. This is partially because of the fear of what Americans call "apple-polishing" and the accusations of favoritism in a school system so rugged that one third of the students taking a final exam fail. Hans added that classroom informality is unheard of in Austria. Austrians seldom laugh and become casual in the classroom. School is strictly an academic institution where fifth grade entrance exams eliminate 25 per cent of the students and where subsequent examinations excuse many more. Those who survive are top students who go to school to take difficult required courses.

At home Martine and Anne-Marie were required by tradition to either stand or bow when their teachers entered the classroom, so they, and Hans also, who was accustomed to similar behavior, were astonished by New Trier's informality. Although they commented that their American classmates were lacking in respect for their elders by European standards and that this was not an altogether happy situation, they remarked that the New Trier informality made it easier for them to adjust to life here.

Extra-curricular activities new to visitors

Terry O'Malley willingly gives his time to serve at the Girls' Club Friendly Banquet. (Nagel)

The foreign visitors were amazed by the wide range of extracurricular activities sponsored by New Trier. Some of these outside interests such as Tri-Ship dances and student government exist strictly for the students, while others such as the dramatic productions, the charity drives, the radio station, and the swimming program for the township are for the benefit of both the studentry and the community. This dimension beyond the purely academic was in varying measures a new concept to the visiting students, whose schools are institutions solely for academic learning.

The Council-sponsored organizations and institutions which allow the student considerable freedom in governing his actions and expanding his interests particularly impressed them. None of them had ever participated in a student government organization as we know it.

Sefik added that he was very much impressed by the practicality of our student government and the idea of the student responsibility behind it, and he hopes to present the idea to his Turkish school next year. José was critical of the New Trier Council, saying that it was a noble idea, but that in practice, it is a wall between the people in the organization who "rule" and the students at large. He was impressed by their method of election but felt that the people elected represented only one type of NT student.

The New Trier code of honor and the system behind it were the subject of much comment. Anne-Marie told ECHOES that such a thing would be impossible in German schools because the students and teachers would not work together on it. The teachers would not be likely to agree not to proctor during an exam, and the students for their part would not be inclined to report cheating to the teacher. Several of the students confessed that an honor system would be too idealistic for European schools, because the final exam is so important that failing it often means the end of one's formal schooling. There is much cheating because so much of the student's future is at stake. Anne-Marie was at first amazed that it worked; Ida was unsure that it actually did work. Sefik said that writing the pledge was unnecessary, since honor is something within oneself, while José felt that it was a great privilege to be able to write it and a wonderful way to show one's honesty.

The three charity drives sponsored by New Trier's service organizations, the magazine subscription campaign, the clothing drive, and the United Fund drive, were also a novelty to the visitors. By then they were becoming almost as blasé as the average New Trier student to the extracurricular activities of their school, but nonetheless, there was still a glimmer of surprise. Martine said that occasionally in France the students would be encouraged to do home-to-home canvassing for a certain charity, but nothing was done on the scale that it is here.

"Astonished" by theater facilities

Jenny Hutchinson intently rehearses the dance sequence of Lagniappe's final scene. (Rau)

The New Trier student usually takes for granted his school's truly exceptional facilities for dramatic and musical productions. A 50-foot-wide stage, 32 battens, a fantastic lighting board, and many, many interested and talented students have contributed New Trier a respected name in high school dramatic circles. The foreign students, to whom this was a very unlikely attribute of a community secondary school, were properly astonished. Of the six, only Ida's school in Indonesia sponsored any theatrical productions, and those on a much smaller scale. During their year at New Trier, both Ida and Sefik participated in student productions. Of course, part of the purpose of the school's dramatic program is to provide an enjoyable and interesting experience for the participating student, but Ida and Sefik were impressed by the almost professional dedication of the New Trier actors, dancers, and musicians. Anne-Marie gave great praise to the nearly professional performances of Lagniappe, the opera group, and the drama department. She said that the dramatic talents of German students are never given a chance to be expressed at their own high schools.

As an award-winning dancer in her own country, Ida was interested in the comparison between the dance forms in her country and the modern dance techniques used in New Trier productions. She said that the American dance form is freer and is expressive in a totally different way than the traditional and disciplined manner of Indonesian dance. To Ida, the modern dance form is interesting, but she still prefers the exquisite and artful control of the traditional dances of Indonesia. Ida was called upon many times to exhibit her dancing ability during the year. Dressed in traditional, elaborate costumes and holding lighted tapers, she brought a new and different touch to the 1962 Lagniappe stage.

Moments later, as they were trudging slowly back to work at New Trier, their reverie was again interrupted by a giant white mollusk which was being washed up on the shore. Gefiltniappe, New Trier's newest dramatic organization, presented shows May 4 and 5 in the Lagniappe style. (Schatz)

An enthusiastic football crowd punctuates its cheers with pom-poms. "My teachers in Germany . . . would have fainted," said Anne-Marie Spath. (Steinberg)

"To know Americans, join a team"

At an AFS reunion of foreign students living in Illinois, held at New Trier during the winter, a student from the Netherlands made the comment that one of the best ways for an outsider to get to know Americans is to join an athletic team. Two of New Trier's exchange students, Hans and Sefik, played this year as the stars of the school interscholastic soccer team. They tremendously enjoyed it, besides showing many American students how the game is really played and leading the team to a state championship.

As is the case with all other extra-curricular activities, a sports program in the European schools is considered optional while here it is considered essential. Hans said that in Austria they played two or three soccer games a year and a couple of basketball games, but that was all. This condition resulted not only from a general lack of interest but also from the important factor that very few upperclassmen had time to practice.

Since interscholastic competition is one of the most important bases of what we call "school spirit," and since European schools do not organize interscholastic sports, it follows that "spirit" as we know it in the form of cheerleaders, crowds waving pom-poms, and pep bands is unheard of outside our boundaries. Hans said the closest thing to "spirit" in Austrian secondary schools is the pride of a student in the academic quality of his school versus that of another.

The foreign visitors were startled by the more than abundant energy of New Trier students at football and basketball games, and all thoroughly enjoyed the excitement. Sefik felt that this enthusiasm was responsible for a better performance on the part of the teams and remarked that if such a game were staged at his Turkish school, the students' apathy would be noticeable.

As Anne-Marie said after the first all-school pep rally of the year, held in the bleachers of the football field, "I wish my teachers in Germany could have seen it. They would have fainted."

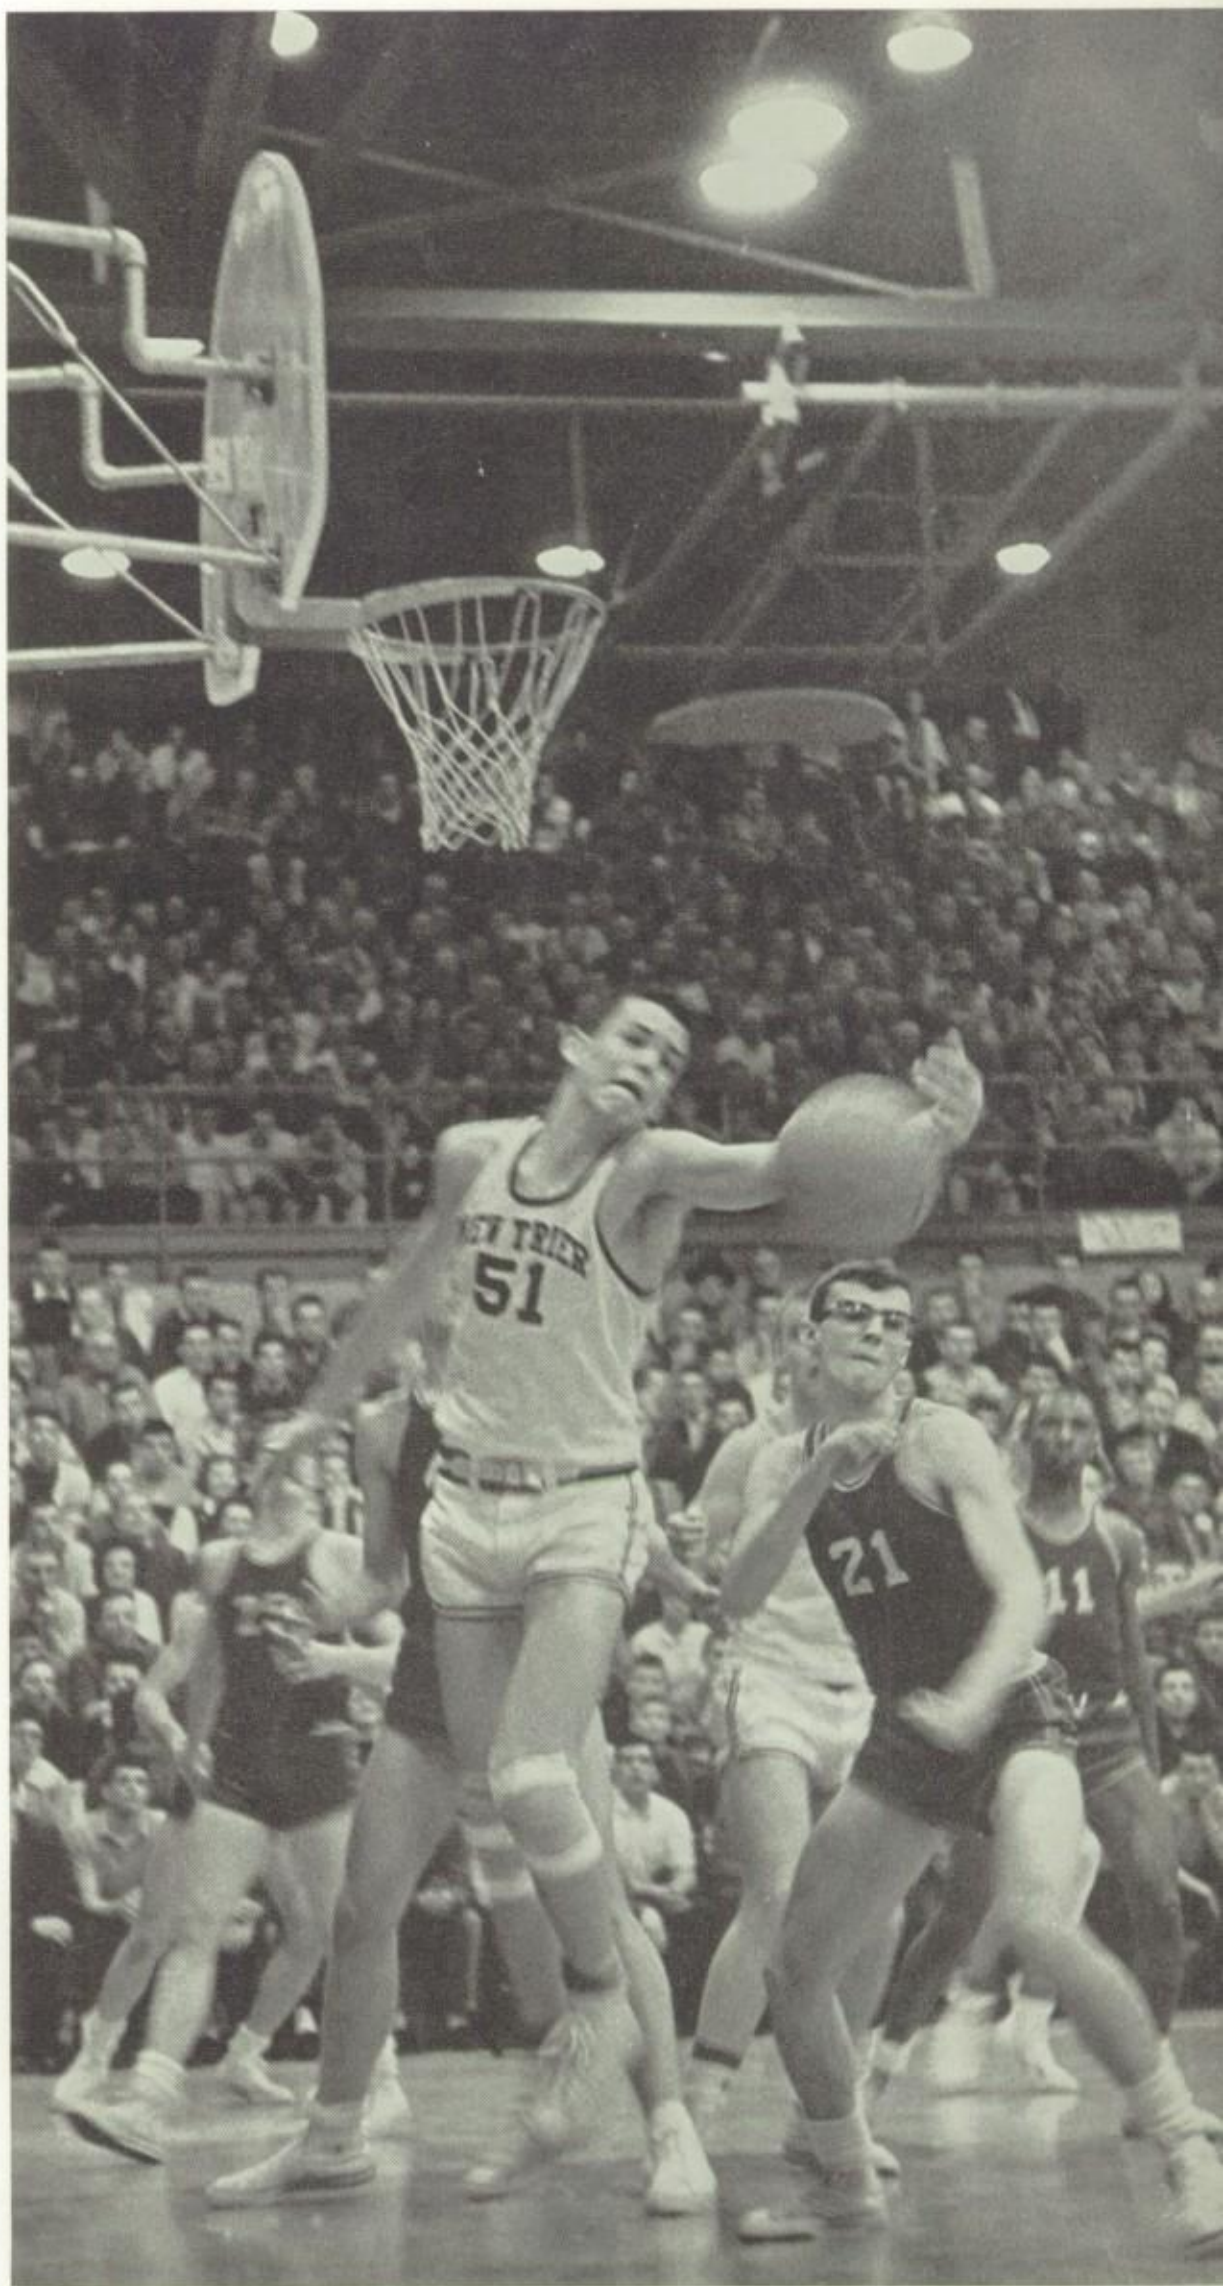

Marilee Cork, Wendy Elliot and Janie Farrell lead a cheer to enliven the Dad's Day festivities. (Schatz)

A male segment of the class of '62 exhibits its usual "abundant energy."

"Americans are so generous with friendship."

Any tourist in a country other than his own will immediately notice great differences between his own manner of behavior, temperament, custom, and even dress and that of those about him. For the visiting students to New Trier, the differences had one major cause: the fact that New Trier is coeducational. For the European students, the situation of all-boy or all-girl schools meant that social life had to be organized beyond one's school acquaintances.

Martine happily noted with a sly smile that despite the segregation French girls do manage to meet French boys. But because girls and boys do not work and study together for seven hours daily, the attitude between the two is different. New Trier girls would probably be stunned if they realized that if they attended Martine's school in Lyon they would discard their bobby socks and casual dress and wear nylons and high heels every school day, as well as style-conscious clothes after the manner of Parisian fashion mannequins. All this effort is endured by the girl to enable her to look her best should she meet some charming boy on the way home from school. New Trierites are more casual.

Anne-Marie said that the Germans are generally more formal than Americans. Boys are expected to greet the girls first, but the girl is expected to make the first move to shake hands. "But nobody shakes hands in America," she added.

Anne-Marie also commented that everyone must have thought she was a snob at the beginning of the year because she had trouble overcoming this habit of waiting to be spoken to.

Hans expressed mild indignation at the skyrocketing expenses of being a boy in America who wants to date. Austrians go "dutch" on dates. In his city there is little "coupling," a custom which is the basis of American dating habits. Groups of boys and girls meet at a large dance hall or private party. Ida said that Indonesians have single dates only if they are engaged to be married.

Martine mentioned that on Saturday nights a group of girls will take a walk down one of the main streets of the town, meet some friends, and go to a local cafe to talk. Martine's main complaint about America, other than the fact that Americans seem to have the misconception that all Frenchmen have mistresses, is that Americans think "all the cafes close at midnight!"

The basic temperament of the American people also struck the foreign students as different and interesting. Ida was struck by the constant rush and competition in American life. She said that where the Indonesians as a people are cheerful, relaxed, and patient, Americans are always on the

"... the approach is different..." Patty Levin, Barb Weiss, and Rick Osborne visit outside during the end of the freshman lunch period. (Schatz)

1961-1962 saw the "twist" sweep America. Even the freshmen did it. Foreign comments were varied—"The twist is a poor substitute for the jitterbug"—Hans. There was Ida Nawawi's dance-conscious remark that "the twist is horrible sometimes, sometimes cool." move. They are friendly, enthusiastic, and eager to make the foreigner at ease, but they feel that “time is money.” Ida disliked the rush and the brisk pace of American walkers. A sidelight: “Girls don’t look like girls when they’re walking fast.” The European students, however, had lived in a society as economically on the move as America’s, and were less inclined to note the difference that Ida had.

All were grateful for the warm welcome they received in America. “Americans are so generous with their friendship,” said Martine. The foreign students have mastered the art of making friends. As Ida pointed out, a welcome extends both ways. The host welcomes the guest, and the guest welcomes the generosity and warmth of the host and does his best to return it.

All those who had the opportunity to meet any of the foreign students here for the year gained much in the way of friendship and understanding of a different way of life. They learned much about others and about themselves. A look from the outside makes those on the inside see their life much more clearly and appreciate it for what it is. It also helps them appreciate the rest of the world’s mores, manners, and problems. It is only through such an exchange of people and ideas that one can ever hope to ameliorate the seeming chaos in the world.

Hans summed it up this way: “The general picture we have of the Americans is definitely a good one and we are fully aware of the Western world’s dependence on the United States. However, for too many people, exchange is limited to Hollywood movies and Elvis Presley records but this mustn’t shock you. There are more and more people who are returning from the United States every year who can easily prove these people wrong.”

Problems, Discussions, Legislation

STUDENT COUNCIL MADE NECESSARY CHANGES TO COPE WITH A GROWING STUDENT POPULATION

The 1961 Student Council, faced with the manifold problems of a rapidly expanding student population, turned its efforts to the refinement and efficient enforcement of its established legislation. Major changes were effected within the Dining Hall Committee, which stalwartly struggled against 4,200 lunching students in its efforts to combat the disciplinary and aesthetic problems before it. A faculty supervised dining hall was begun in order to cope with the discipline of the few students who attempted to thwart the aims of the committee. Music continued to be played over the public address system, and artificial potted plants on the wall did double duty by pretending to freshen the air and lending a homey atmosphere to a previously stark room. The change which was most noticed by the students however, was that of nomenclature from "Lunch Hall" to "Dining Hall." The supporters of "Dining Hall" contended it had a more elegant connotation.

The controversial but praiseworthy efforts of the Honor Committee, which attempted to eliminate student cheating and to instill honor, resulted in a modification of its method of presentation. It was voted by Council that the voting be put on an individual basis rather than a group one. In other words, the student in a class that was voting whether or not to adopt the honor system was now asked to vote according to whether he wanted to use the honor system rather than if he thought the class as a whole would accept it. A three-fourths affirmative vote was made necessary for passage of the system in each class. In the president's report on Council action during the 1961 term, it was noted by the head of the Honor Committee that of the 580 classes that had voted, 572 had decided to accept the honor system.

A bronze plaque outlining the tenets of the Code of Ethics was presented to the school in October at an assembly and was installed in the first floor rotunda. The plaque replaced the explanatory booklet which had been distributed to the students in previous years.

One of the first issues to be resolved in the 1961 administration was the bill providing for Town Meetings to be held monthly, where the studentry could come to discuss pending bills with the Council members. Several hundred students attended each of the four meetings held during this administration, and they were commended as a successful move in promoting better contact between the students and their government. A monthly sock-hop or No-name was also held, usually in conjunction with an athletic or dramatic event.

Council recommended to the administration a revision in the presentation of the Athletic Code, which called for a meeting of the team captains and the coaches at the beginning of the season for the purpose of discussing a feasible code. This issue was turned over to the Tri-Ship "N" Club, made up of varsity letter winners.

The freshmen were introduced to the workings of Council through an agreement with the faculty whereby tenth period freshman classes were invited to spend a day watching the organization in action.

The greatest internal reforms concerned the representative system, which was clarified for the first time in the by-laws. Another Representative Bill provided for quarterly, or nine week, rotation of rep assignments to adviser rooms rather than semesterly as before. The purpose of this was to allow the particularly good reps to represent more people during the semester, thereby allowing the students to vote with more information in subsequent rep elections.

Council granted charters to four new organizations, the New Trier Folk Singing Society, the Go-Kart Club, the Aesculapians, and the Yarn and Thread Club. All the Council-sponsored clubs were organized by the Social and Recreation Committees for a Halloween Party on Beggars' Night. Booths and bingo were set up in the Dining Hall, movies were shown, and the gyms were opened for roller skating, ping-pong, and miniature golf.

Perhaps one of the most controversial bills, and one which interested, either pro or con, a great number of students not directly concerned with Council, was the Council Jewelry Bill. The "Pride Pin Bill," as it was commonly known, provided that members of Council be able to purchase small lavaliers or tie clasps with the organizational insignia. Many of the students and nearly half of the representatives opposed the bill on the grounds that it was both unnecessary and that it further widened the gap between Council and the people it represents. Though only a minor bill, the results of a poll of the students presented to the Council revealed that it was one of the most widely discussed of the year and, unfortunately, one of the least understood.

The Council treasurer elected to serve in the 1961 administration, Gerry Langford, moved to Florida during the summer. Steve Edelman, who tallied the next highest number of votes in that election, was appointed to serve the rest of the term. Among the actions of the treasurer was the appropriation to Pep Club for new cheerleading skirts after the colors ran together in the old ones at a rainy Evanston football game, and a "backing guarantee" to insure payment of the fees of the professional performers who appeared at the Folk Singing Society Festival. Council also was in charge of the disbursement of the activities ticket fund. On the whole, Council enjoyed a financially sound year.

The greatest accomplishment of Council, and one not to be sniffed at, was that it survived intact the weekly onslaught of the New Trier News. The Huckleberry Hound Fan Club, traditionally led by the Council president (who fortunately was not forced to fly to the side of his gate during the Berlin crisis), was joined by a rival Pancho Villa Fan Club led by the vice-president. The Council secretary was known to be occasionally afflicted with hallucinations of shamrocks, and it was the opinion of the board that the organization's main "in-joke" was Pat Macfarland.

Council library staff members collected permits and maintained discipline in the library. (Steinberg)

They Have That Spirit

Pep Club's innovations included pom-pom routines by the membership, a tea given for all the Suburban League varsity cheerleaders, a freshman representative system to cope with a membership of over 800, and a larger number of club meetings. The fine Pep Club Dads' Day float attested to the club's quality, and the cheerleaders won five first place ribbons at the Smith-Walleridge Cheerleader Camp during the summer. Practicing three nights every week during the summer put them in good form for cheering at football, soccer, and basketball games, and at swimming meets. "On the Warpath," the Pep Club banquet, was the last big job of the 1962 board. At the banquet, the new board members and cheerleaders were announced.

Activity from A to Y

The activities of the approximately 25 clubs chartered by Student Council are co-ordinated by an organization known as the Council of Clubs. The Council is made up of club presidents and certain other special members. The group's main co-ordinating job is planning the annual Halloween Party to determine what clubs and organizations will run what booths.

The Film Guild is an unusual club in that it is not sponsored by Council, but rather by a member of the English faculty, this year Mr. Metzger. The purpose of the newly created Guild is to be of service to the school by showing high quality films at a low cost to develop interest in the cinema as an art form. The Film Guild's officers were: Bob Doyno, President; Roger Peterson, Vice-President; Dave Wiley, Secretary; and Sandy Doke, Treasurer. Jeremy Sherer was head of publicity, with Bob Meier as her assistant. A few of the films presented on Thursday evenings during the year were "Open City," "On the Waterfront," "The Bicycle Thief," and "Potemkin."

The Aesculapians, a club newly organized this year under the leadership of Mr. Swoap, provided prospective medical students with opportunities to hear of the many careers open to them from specialists from those fields. Among the speakers who addressed the club were a surgeon, a pediatrician, and an otorhinolaryncologist (eye, ear, nose, throat).

Striving to fulfill their purpose of improving international relations, the American Field Service Club of over 400 members sponsored four exchange students at New Trier. These, with 41 other AFS students in Illinois, gathered at New Trier on March 9, 10, and 11 for a weekend of fun, discussion, and sightseeing.

Under the leadership of Mr. William Buffett, AFS also held the annual Foreign Film Festival, featuring films from France, England, and the UNESCO branch of the UN. Proceeds from this, a Halloween Party booth, and the annual bottle drive, plus grants from the Kiwanis Club of Wilmette and the United Fund, will enable New Trier to have four more students next year.

Art Seminar, composed of a small group of art students, met semi-monthly for discussions on various phases of art. There were no pre-planned discussions, but the students often discussed the psychology of a painting or analyzed the content of a picture which one of the students or Mr. Keunan, the sponsor, brought to the meeting.

The Aquarium Club, sponsored by Mr. Hoyt, had one of its most successful years. The club, which encourages its members to keep their own aquaria, conducted experiments in fish breeding and growth. A trip to the Shedd Aquarium in Chicago during spring vacation and the exhibit of fish at the Halloween Party were the outstanding achievements of the club.

Approximately twice a month the twenty Bernoullians met, under the sponsorship of Mr. Rockey and Mr. Paumer. At the meetings the members shared their ideas on different phases of mathematics and worked on problems. Some of their ideas were those on which they had done research on their own. The club also had Mr. Wilcox from the Illinois Institute of Technology as their guest lecturer.

The Boat Club year was highlighted by a trip to the Chicago Boat Show and two fall and spring cruises. The fall trip was to Lake Geneva and the spring one was to be either through the Chain Lakes or from Starved Rock to Peoria and back. On the cruises the club enjoyed shoreline weiner roasts. The club saw boating movies when not cruising.

The New Trier Folk Singing Society highlighted its first year by conducting the First Annual North Shore Folk Festival at which Frank Hamilton and Valucha Buffington, along with students from New Trier and surrounding schools were featured. The club, sponsored by Mr. Stevens, presented a weekly folk singing show on WNTH besides holding monthly "hootenannies," meetings at which talented students could demonstrate their talent.

The Future Nurses of America met approximately once a month to hear speakers on various health careers. According to the club's sponsor, Mrs. Savage, although the main emphasis was on a nursing career, there have been speakers on several different fields of health, including therapy and dental hygiene. The girls' only outside activity this year was making one hundred valentines for the children's ward of Cook County Hospital.

The thirty members of French Club, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Morris, met three times each semester. The club presented its annual Christmas program, this year a group of French Christmas carols, for all French students, and also held a music meeting at which members performed French compositions. Martine Jeune, AFS student from France, showed slides of her country at another of the meetings.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Delong, Future Teachers of America presented monthly programs of interest to those who are considering a career in the field of education. Aside from educational films, the club had several guest speakers, including a kindergarten teacher, a Chicago social worker, and Mrs. Smutney from Northwestern's "cherubs" program.

The purpose of Interfaith is to try to eliminate religious prejudice on the North Shore and to promote understanding among religious groups. The club met three times at various houses of worship to hear speakers and hold discussions. The club officers were Bob McLeod, President; Betsy Cohen, Vice-President; Joanne Shankman, Secretary; and Gordy Adams, Treasurer. Linda Ferris was head of publicity and Mr. Gregory was the sponsor.

Taking advantage of the AFS students' wide knowledge of different parts of the world, the Geography Club had the exchange students for its main speakers. Highlight of the year, however, was the annual fifteen-mile Spring Hike. Besides that there were their traditional Christmas and spring parties and the very successful booth at the Halloween Party.

Twice a month the twenty members of the German Club met under the sponsorship of Herr Gould. The main purpose of the club was to give the members a chance to speak German and do things that can not be accomplished in the classroom. Some of their activities included a German dance, dinner at a German restaurant, and a German movie at the Davis Theatre.

Mr. Smith led the Lens Club through another busy season of shutter-clicking. The club sponsored three photography contests besides hearing informative talks prepared by its members. Studio nights, occasions when the photography lab was opened to members to photograph volunteer models (do not confuse with Model Club), highlighted the year.

Latin Club, meeting about once a month, was extremely active. The annual banquet, attended by about 325 togacled, laurel-wreathed students, featured an auction of freshman slaves and a Roman chorus. About 200 students participated in the program. Another project was the translation of Erasmus, which the club hopes eventually be published in book form. Dr. Drake is the club's sponsor.

The purpose of the club was to give the members a chance to watch, criticize, and learn from each others' performances. At each of the monthly meetings there was a program in which approximately ten members sang or played an instrument.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Ream, Senior Music Club held monthly dinner meetings, each followed by a program of student performances. The almost one hundred members also presented some special programs including a Parent's Night and an evening of original compositions.

The Radio Club had a very active and successful year, starting off with technical talks given by one of its members. Besides eating spudnuts, the club installed new pieces of equipment in their radio shack, the operational center of the club whose call letters are W9EDC. With Mr. Rockey as sponsor, the club opened its shack for public inspection and held its annual spring picnic.

The Ski Club, sponsored by Mr. Larsen, this winter focused its attention on novices to the sport, more commonly known as "snow bunnies" to more experienced skiers. The beginning skiers were made welcome to the club by two one-day trips to Wilmot and Majestic Hills, ski areas on the Wisconsin-Illinois border. Many members also went on a 4-day trip to visit the Michigan resorts of Caberfae, Nub's Nob, and Boyne Mountain. Their major trip was, however, the annual excursion over spring vacation to Winter Park, Colorado, under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Turner.

In the spring the group took their annual trip to a Mexican restaurant. According to the sponsor, Miss Mair, the main purpose of the club is to stimulate interest in Spanish American culture.

Stamp and coin collectors were able to share their interest with others through the Stamp and Coin Club. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Neuman, the club held regular meetings which consisted of trading sessions and one special public auction that was open to the entire school. At the Halloween party, the members operated an appropriate penny-toss booth.

Yarn and Thread Club was started second semester to provide a place for interested people to get together and knit. Started by the president and Mrs. Courtney, the sponsor, its membership has grown rapidly. Knitting has become increasingly popular, and the club offers instruction and help from Mrs. Courtney for interested girls.

Spanish Club members Steve Swartzman, Jan Kruger, Connie McClory, Martha Gomez, and Donna Florsheim met to discuss Spanish literature. (Steinberg)

Clever Ideas Spark Growth

ENTHUSIASM AND NOVELTY WERE THE KEYNOTES OF GIRLS' CLUB EXPANSION

MAUDE ROSSER
Chairman of the Reps

The 1961-1962 Girls' Club overwhelmed New Trier with its fresh ideas and enthusiasm. Among the novel contributions introduced were the distribution of Christmas cards through adviser rooms, the handling of foreign pen-pals, and the redistricting of the villages to facilitate collection during the clothing drive, which this year collected 25 tons of clothing. Keeping pace with the school's increasing population, Girls' Club added four new service staffs: IBM Staff, Boys' College Counselor's Staff, and two Spanish Aid Staffs. The organization, also determined to stimulate school social life, co-sponsored a spring turnabout dance with Tri-Ship.

Girls' Club was distinguished during the year by its original art work which usually incorporated a vegetable theme, as in the handbooks and at the Freshman-Senior Party, "How Does Your Garden . . . ?" This horticultural bent was again displayed in the Girls' Club float for Dads' Day, a verdant worm. They deviated from this trend, however, long enough to paint radical white stripes on the football stands before the first home football game, instead of the traditional flowers.

In executing annual projects, Girls' Club employed their imagination and creativity to produce such outstanding successes as the mother-daughter banquet, "Mummy and Me" and the friendly dinner, "Dial a Smile." The club's industrious efforts were also rewarded by the goals reached in the magazine and United Fund drives as well as by the active cash register in the still infant paper-back book store.

Though rumored to have once spent forty minutes deciding what color jello to have at a banquet, for the most part Girls' Club channeled its energies well, resulting in a unique and productive year.

Joyce Barker and Alice Lewis sell refreshments at the Halloween party. (Nagel)

Increases and Innovations in Service

TRI-SHIP INITIATED NEW AND DIFFERENT CHARITABLE ACTIVITIES WHILE CONTINUING USUAL ONES.

Tri-Ship had perhaps the most difficult job of any of New Trier's student organizations. Last year's Tri-Ship under the leadership of Frank Patton accomplished more than perhaps any previous Tri-Ship. Thus it would have been possible for this year's Tri-Ship to merely continue Frank's innovations and rest on his laurels. This, however, was not the case.

This year's Tri-Ship initiated a program through which 60 boys made bi-weekly visits to Chicago settlement houses and other charitable organizations. These boys not only assisted professional charity workers but also took the responsibility of organizing basketball leagues and other activities for the Chicago boys. Tri-Ship also planned a spring "crash" day on which they hoped to get all New Trier boys to work for various charitable organizations.

New Trier's two Tri-Ship-sponsored charity drives were also successful. The clothing drive collected a record 23 tons, two tons over their goal. This clothing was donated to the Save the Children Federation. In March, Tri-Ship and Girls' Club sponsored the United Fund Drive. Again the goal was exceeded. The final total was $4,602.82.

The Dance Committee put on five dances. The dances were, as usual, attractively decorated but an innovation was the holding of many of the dances in the dining hall in order to have favorable lighting conditions.

The ticket committee expertly controlled the sales of tickets to the record Lagniappe and Opera crowds. Lagniappe was a sell-out and Tri-Ship will have a record amount to use for scholarships.

One of the highlights of this year's Tri-Ship activities was the planning of the Dad's Day festivities. For the first time New Trier had a homecoming queen and her (sic) beauty will be long remembered. All-in-all, Tri-Ship had a very successful year under the leadership of their new sponsor, Mr. Bruce James.

Tri-Ship lends its president to serve at the Girls' Club Friendly Banquet. (Nagel)

Star Athletes Aid School

The "N" Club is a social and service organization composed of the junior and senior boys who have varsity letters in any New Trier inter-scholastic sport. This year's membership totaled 160 under the leadership of Gordy Adams, President, Vice-President Tim Ade, and Secretary-Treasurer Roger Kurz.

"N" Club sponsored two dances for members and their dates. The first was a very enjoyable square dance held at a barn at Mundelein in the fall. The second dance was in the spring.

Members also helped serve food at Girls' Club and GAA banquets, organized half-time entertainment for the basketball games, and assisted the Student Council in maintaining order in the dining hall.

Service for Service's Sake

THE NEW TRIER GUARD, THE AUDIO-VISUAL STAFF, THE STUDENT TUTORS, AND THE SERVICE CLUB MEMBERS GAVE UNSELFISHLY OF THEIR TIME TO AID THE SCHOOL AND THE COMMUNITY.

Known to the school by their familiar white smocks, which they dislike wearing, the ten girls of the Service Club provide invaluable aid in the nurse's office during the day.

The varied duties of the members of the club, which is entirely for service, not social work, include doing clerical work, running errands, and washing small wounds. The girls only give medical aid under the direction of the nurses. Although the Red Cross Home Nursing course is no longer a prerequisite for working on the Service Club, many of the girls have had experience in first aid and nursing.

The Audio-Visual staff is trained to operate and know how to repair all equipment and to be able to teach others to be projectionists. Before a class receives a piece of equipment, it is checked by the A-V staff to see that it is in perfect working condition. One boy is assigned each period of the day to work in the A-V office, which houses film and slide projectors, tape recorders, and a short-circuit television for the use of the school.

JIM FOX Student Director HANK HARRINGTON Student Director

The Student Tutoring Service is one of New Trier's newest organizations, having been founded only last year. The 120 participating tutors volunteered for the program and were chosen to serve because of their above-average academic ability—a 3.25 general average is required, or outstanding performance in a special academic field. The number of tutors has doubled over last year because of the enthusiastic reception of the program by the faculty and students and the increased demand for its services.

Better grades and a more complete understanding of the subject on both the part of the tutor and his tutee have proven the efficiency of the program.

Rollin Glaser of the English Department is the faculty sponsor. Six people work during the day in the tutoring office (sandwiched between third and fourth floors over the pool) increasing the efficiency of the organization by keeping up the records and distributing pink "out-of-room" permits stamped with Mr. Glaser's signature to the tutors. The climax of the Tutoring Service's year occurred when it filed a notice in the daily bulletin calling attention to a summer lab session.

The tutorial "curriculum" has been expanded to include subjects taught in the Business Department. No non-academic subjects are included.

The New Trier Pool Guard is described by Coach Dave Robertson as "the backbone of the New Trier Swimming Organization." The Guard is a non-profit organization serving the community. It operates the swimming instruction sessions for grammar school children on Saturday mornings and also a "free swim" time Wednesday evenings for the community. The Guard also serves the school by instructing the physical education classes in swimming and by helping train members of the inter-scholastic teams.

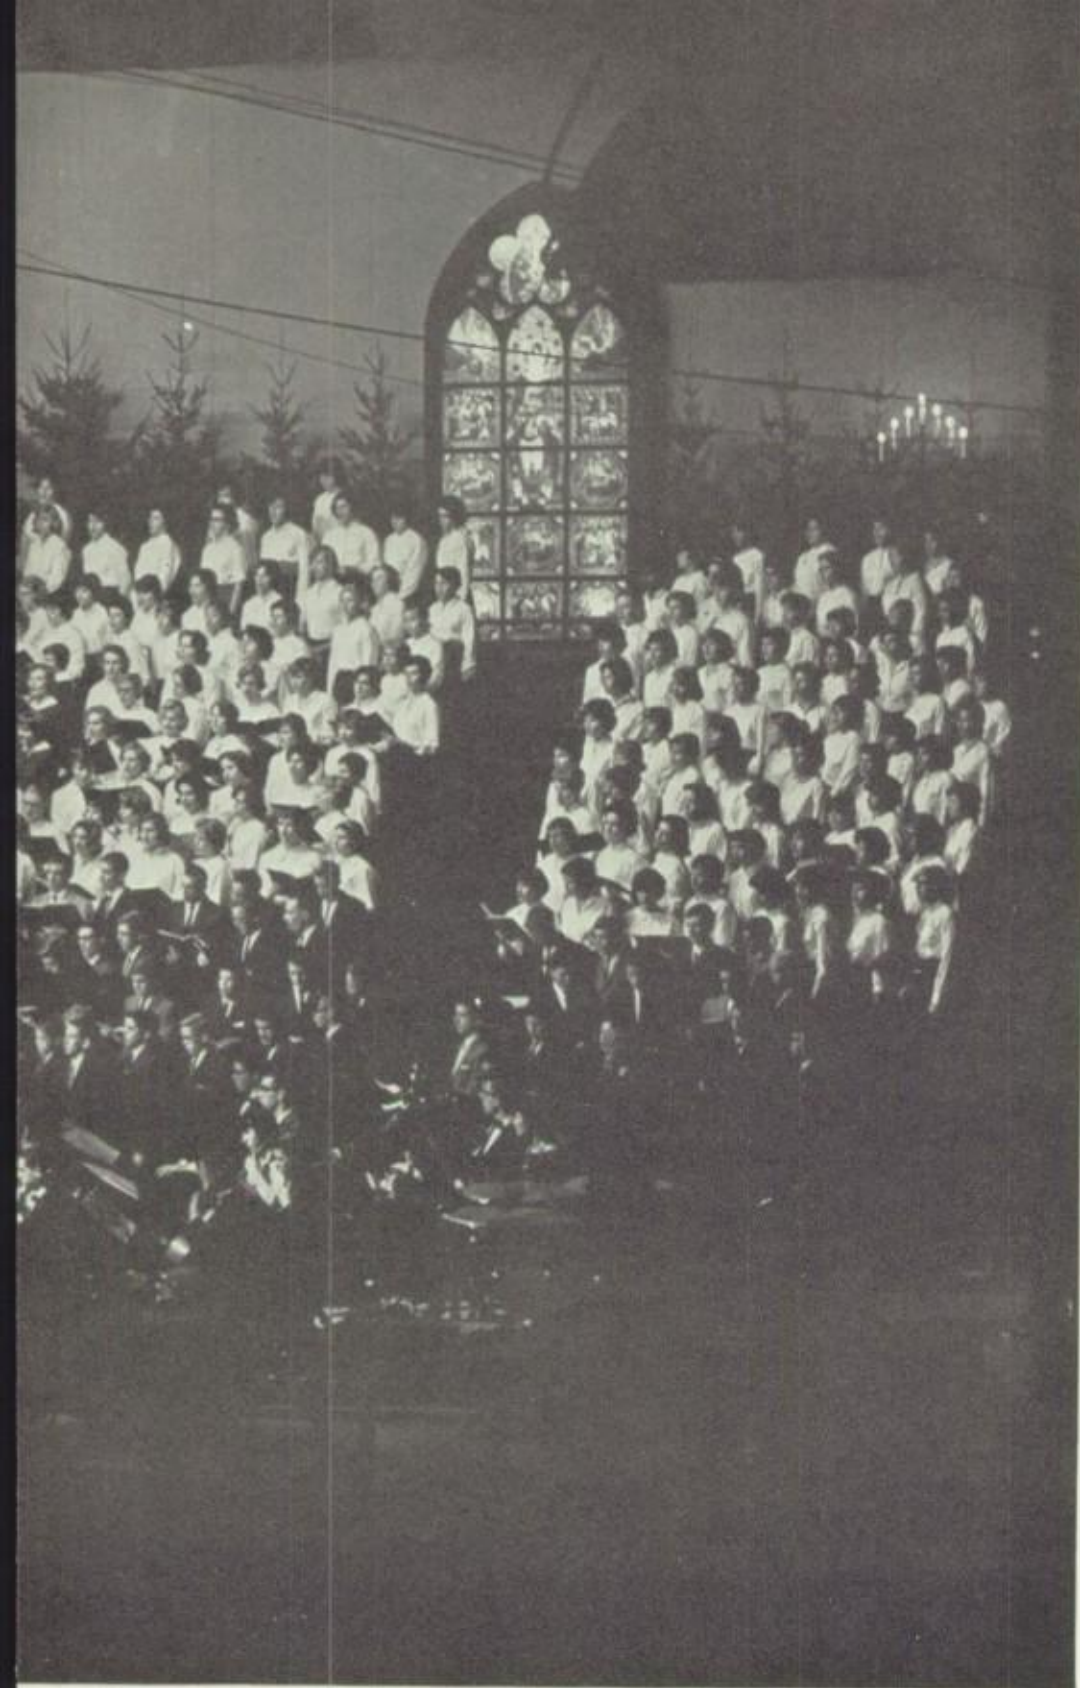

Don Shanley, also a star varsity swimmer, served as student head of the Guard with Bev Fairbairn, who led the girl members. The Guard is composed only of those students who exhibit ability and interest in swimming, the desire to teach, and the capacity for responsibility. Every member spends a minimum of about four poolside hours weekly: three hours on Saturday and an hour Wednesday evening. Bound by their friendship and common interests, Guard members usually attend swim meets together, and the varsity team considers the feminine contingent of the Guard their most effective booster.

Bev Fairbairn and Phil Miller instruct a group of little girls at the Saturday morning swim program handled by the Guard. (Schatz)

THE ARTS

More Opportunities For Actors

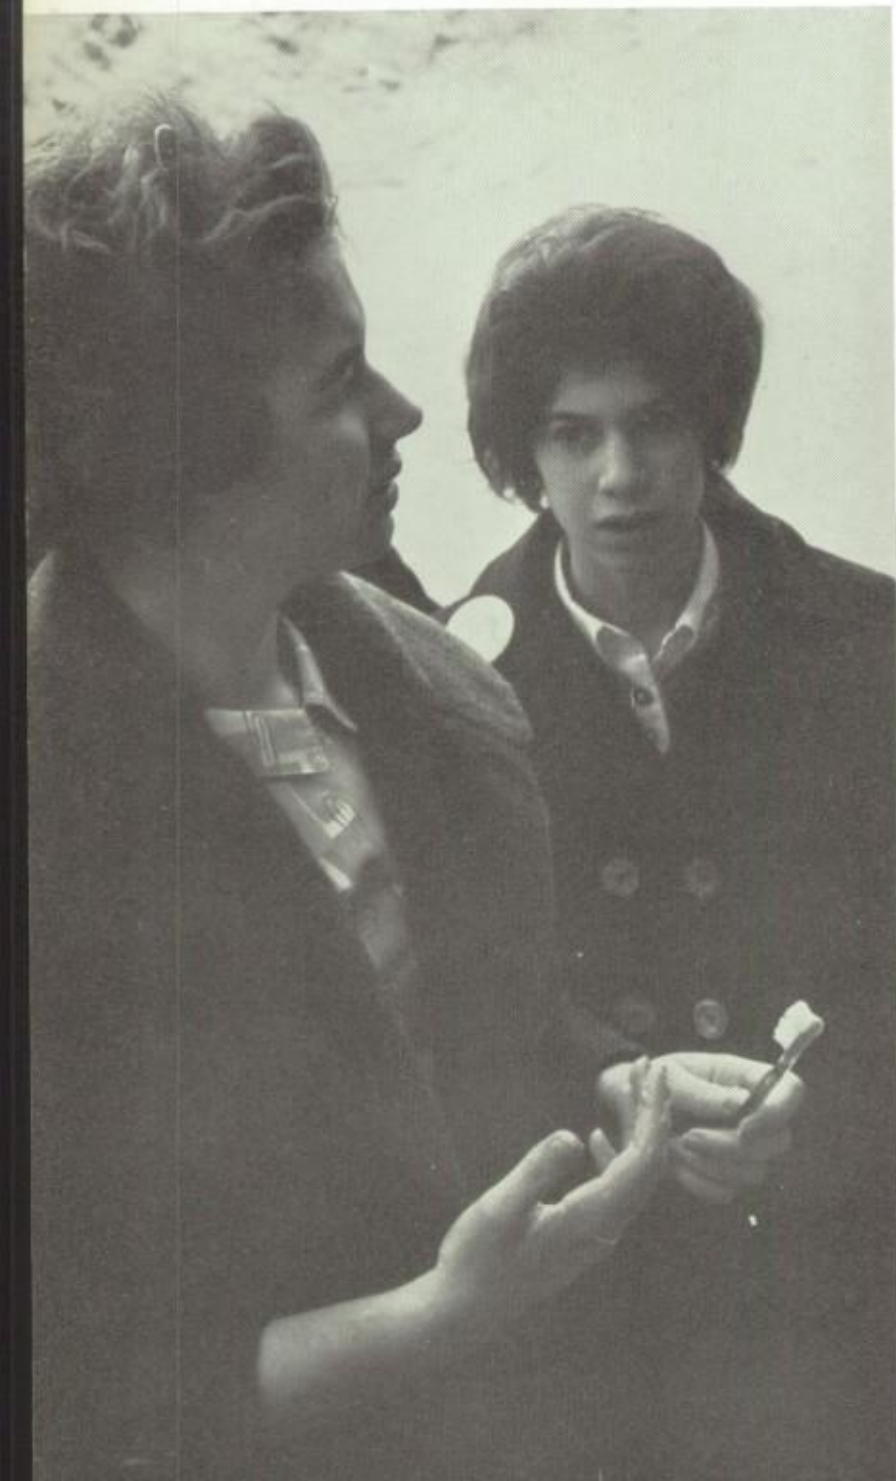

DRAMA CLUB WAS ACTIVE, BOTH SOCIALLY AND DRAMATICALLY, IN RESPONSE TO THE ENTHUSIASM OF INCREASED MEMBERSHIP.

"In the past year Drama Club has done more for its members than ever before, in the sense that it has provided more opportunities for them to act." The opportunities that President Karen Yocum was referring to were the three one-act plays directed and cast by students, and the presentation of "Everyman," which Karen directed. The one-acts presented this year were "Lord Byron's Love Letter," directed by Robin Doyno; "Hitchhiker," directed by Charli Loewenherz, and "The Miracle Merchant," directed by Louise Leonhard. This was the first year that Drama Club had sponsored any productions in addition to contributing to the three plays produced by the drama department.

Membership soared to a new high of 301, and because of the enthusiasm of the members, the club sponsored a float in the Dads' Day parade and a Roaring 20's booth at the Halloween Party. Among the club's other activities were a theatre trip to Chicago to see "Bye Bye Birdie," and a party held for drama students from Evanston, Glenbrook, and Highland Park high schools. There were also two banquets, the initiation banquet in January and the awards banquet in June. An early morning initiation was also held for those who could not attend the banquet, at which the initiates scrubbed the auditorium steps with toothbrushes as a penalty for late initiation. Karen attributed a great deal of the club's success this year to Louise Leonhard, head of Social, and Rick Paul, head of Publicity.

'The Matchmaker'

Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker" was presented by the drama department as the fall play. "The Matchmaker" involves a wealthy merchant who decides to find a wife. He employs a matchmaker who becomes involved with two of his clerks, a group of young ladies, and the waiters at a restaurant where the play reaches a hilarious climax of chaos and complication.

The cast, headed by Shelley Reuben as the matchmaker and Terry Bangs as the merchant, had natural teamwork and excellent timing. Benny Zarbin, Becky Rapport and Phyllis Koch were the student directors.

'The Cradle Song'

"The Cradle Song," a play of Spanish origin, was presented the week before Christmas vacation. It was under the direction of Miss Gahagan and student director Susan Arons.

"The Cradle Song" is a simple story concerning a group of enclosed Dominican nuns. The peace and serenity of the nuns' life is somewhat interrupted when a baby girl is left at the convent and the nuns take it upon themselves to raise her with the help of their kindly but lonely doctor. At the age of eighteen the girl, Teresa, falls in love and finally leaves the convent in order to marry her suitor and go to America.

The cast, composed largely of girls, was greatly intrigued by the study of nuns and their habits. This interest was evidenced by their touching and believable performances. Exceptionally fine performances were given by Jenny Taylor and Sue Tisdall, both of whom had deep feeling for their parts.

'The Taming of the Shrew'

The drama department's first attempt at Shakespeare was "The Taming of the Shrew," presented as the spring play under the direction of Mr. Buerger and student directors Karen Yocum and Louise Leonhard.

"The Taming of the Shrew" deals with a father who insists that his devilish elder daughter Katharina be married before her younger sister, Bianca. Bianca's suitors are determined to find a husband for Katharina so that one of them will soon be able to marry Bianca. Finally the fortune-hunter Petruchio agrees to marry the girl because of her large dowry.

Petruchio is discovered to be far more devilish than Katharina, and due to his dictatorial ways, she is completely subdued. Bianca marries one of her suitors and at a wedding feast at the end of the play Katharina proves that she is actually the more docile of the two sisters.

Excellence in Diversified Music

THE PRODUCTIONS OF THE MUSIC DEPARTMENT RAN THE GAMUT FROM AN ORATORIO TO A SOLOIST CONCERT TO A MUSICAL COMEDY.

Dr. Peterman, illustrious head of New Trier's excellent music department, led the department through a year of sparkling performances.

The first major musical production of the year was the opera group's presentation of Mendelssohn's oratorio, Elijah. It was the second oratorio ever presented at New Trier, and was an ambitious undertaking for a high school choral group. However, with the help of professional soloists, the group gave a polished performance. The opera group's other production of the year, "High Button Shoes," was so well received that a Saturday matinee was scheduled as a fifth performance.

The Senior Girls' Choir was a new group added to the department for girls who for various reasons were not able to be in other groups. Dr. Peterman, the director, said the group gave him a great deal of pleasure because the girls were singing solely for their own enjoyment.

The senior ensembles, orchestra, band, and choir, gave concerts during the year and also sang outside of school. Their major activities were the two scholarship concerts in the spring, which raised money to help worthy students take music lessons at New Trier. The junior groups, both choral and instrumental, also performed publicly, as did members of the music faculty. All students in choral groups participated in both afternoon and evening performances of the annual Christmas Concert and Spring Festival.

One of the finest events of the musical year was the Commencement Concert given in June—an opportunity for graduating soloists to perform. The entire year proved to be successful, with all groups, from the combined freshman choruses to the Senior Orchestra, gaining and giving valuable experiences through their performances.

CONCERT BAND

'High Button Shoes'

"High Button Shoes" was presented as the opera group's major production of the year. Though not too successful on Broadway, the show, with its fast-moving humor and catchy music, was an instant and definite smash on the New Trier auditorium stage. The rather involved plot concerned a delightful family living in New Brunswick, New Jersey, about 1910 and their problems when a former resident of the town, con man J. Harrison Floy, returned. Their antics, set to music, take members of the family from a risqué tango, to a wild chase through Atlantic City, and through quiet moments at home between Mama and Papa.

With only 400 tickets available when general sale opened, Dr. Peterman decided to schedule a Saturday matinee as a fifth performance. The 400 tickets were sold immediately as well as 1200 tickets to the matinee.

The two leading female parts were shared by six girls while only two boys shared each male lead. The chorus, unusually large this year, was split into two casts working alternate nights. According to Dr. Peterman, this new casting arrangement was set up to capitalize on as much of New Trier's abundant talent as possible. The chorus, projecting admirably, supported exceptional principals at all performances. Playing Mama were Sue Ervin, Marcia Stokes, and Bonnie Traum. Papa was played by George Brandenburg and Jim Paulk; Harrison Floy by Bill Burrows and Pete Morse; Fran by Pam Eldredge, Kerry Ketola, and Judy Rockelmann; and Oggie by Bill Barr and Chip Miner. Chris Miller and Rick Steadry played Mr. Pontdue.

It was the general opinion that the opera group maintained the high quality which New Trier has come to expect in the annual production.

Wednesday's Mama, Sue Ervin, titters with the rest of the lady birdwatchers as Bill Burrows begins his spiel. (Schatz)

Friday's Uncle Willie, Steve Fleisher, is overcome by the determined maid, Sheilah Bernstein, after a violent encounter with the tango. (Schatz)

Pete Morse, as the Saturday cast's Harrison Floy, bids Bonnie and the victory party good-bye, and pushes on to greener pastures. (Steinberg)

Thursday leads Papa (George Brandenburg), Stevie (Flip Bimstein), Mama (Bonnie Traum), Fran (Pam Eldredge), Oggle (Bill Barr), Nancy (Stephanie Cotsirilos), and Uncle Willie (Pete McQueen), finish the opera with a song of victory for dear old Rutgers. (Nagel)

'Hand Me An Apple'

"From Adam and Eve to the IBM machine, we've shown the past in review . . ." was the summation of the twenty-third annual Lagniappe, "Hand Me An Apple." The numbers were combined in a fast-paced review format with the major emphasis on music, the highlights of which were original pieces by Bob Arons, Spike Dashow, and Ellie Liebman.

It all started "in the beginning" when a certain snake enticed a certain woman to make a certain man eat a certain fruit. Since that fateful day, man has diligently ignored all signs warning of danger. The Pharaoh was told the right way to build a pyramid, but he had to do it his own way with slaves. It might hold up through a chorus of a song, but, as Asch said, "It'll never last." Caesar never would have been killed if he had been "beware of the Ides of March" — at least that's what the Soothsayer sayethed as slowly set the sun.

Other memorable moments in the show were provided by the Knightlet who slew the dragon to get the Princess, only to find her bewitched by a member of the Opera group on a tricycle, and upon breaking the spell was so anxious that the Princess had to fight to finish her song, only to end the act in a side-splitting rip! Kathy Abelson and Sally MacKinnon added a new high in humor with their runners of un-seen holes and torn umbrellas. Tim Ade, as Roc Dynamo, gave an unexpected note to the show as did Smokey and the slapstick satire of the football players. Never in New Trier history have the cheerleaders looked anything like that . . .

The various performing groups reached new heights of excellence. The chorus, directed by Liz Hoehn and Brian Donegan, reached a theatrical high point while building the pyramid, singing classic nonsense in Cramalot, and complaining about the over-dominant IBM machine. The acting group, directed by Sally MacKinnon and Pete Coffield, served to unite the show by providing leads for numbers and by doing two numbers itself. The specialty group, led by Jim Patton and Burt Kushner, provided runners, spare people for mass numbers, and a hilarious climax in the football number. Linda Davis and Marg Fowle assisted by Southey Swede led the dance group through dances that ranged from the classic modern in Egypt to show dancing in Salem, plus intense trios and quartets. The orchestra, under the direction of Dave Browder and his assistant, Spike Dashow, became an integral part of the show when it played the comedy entr'act. The technical effects and costumes were of first quality. All who were in the show will remember the thrill of being subject to Sam DiCesare's improvised lighting.

The show made more money for Tri-Ship scholarship fund than any previous Lagniappe. Co-directors Ellie Liebman and Tom Snell may be proud to have produced a financial as well as a theatrical success.

Cultural Development Through Art

THE ART DEPARTMENT DEVELOPED STUDENTS' CREATIVE AND APPRECIATIVE FACULTIES AS WELL AS THEIR ARTISTIC TALENTS.

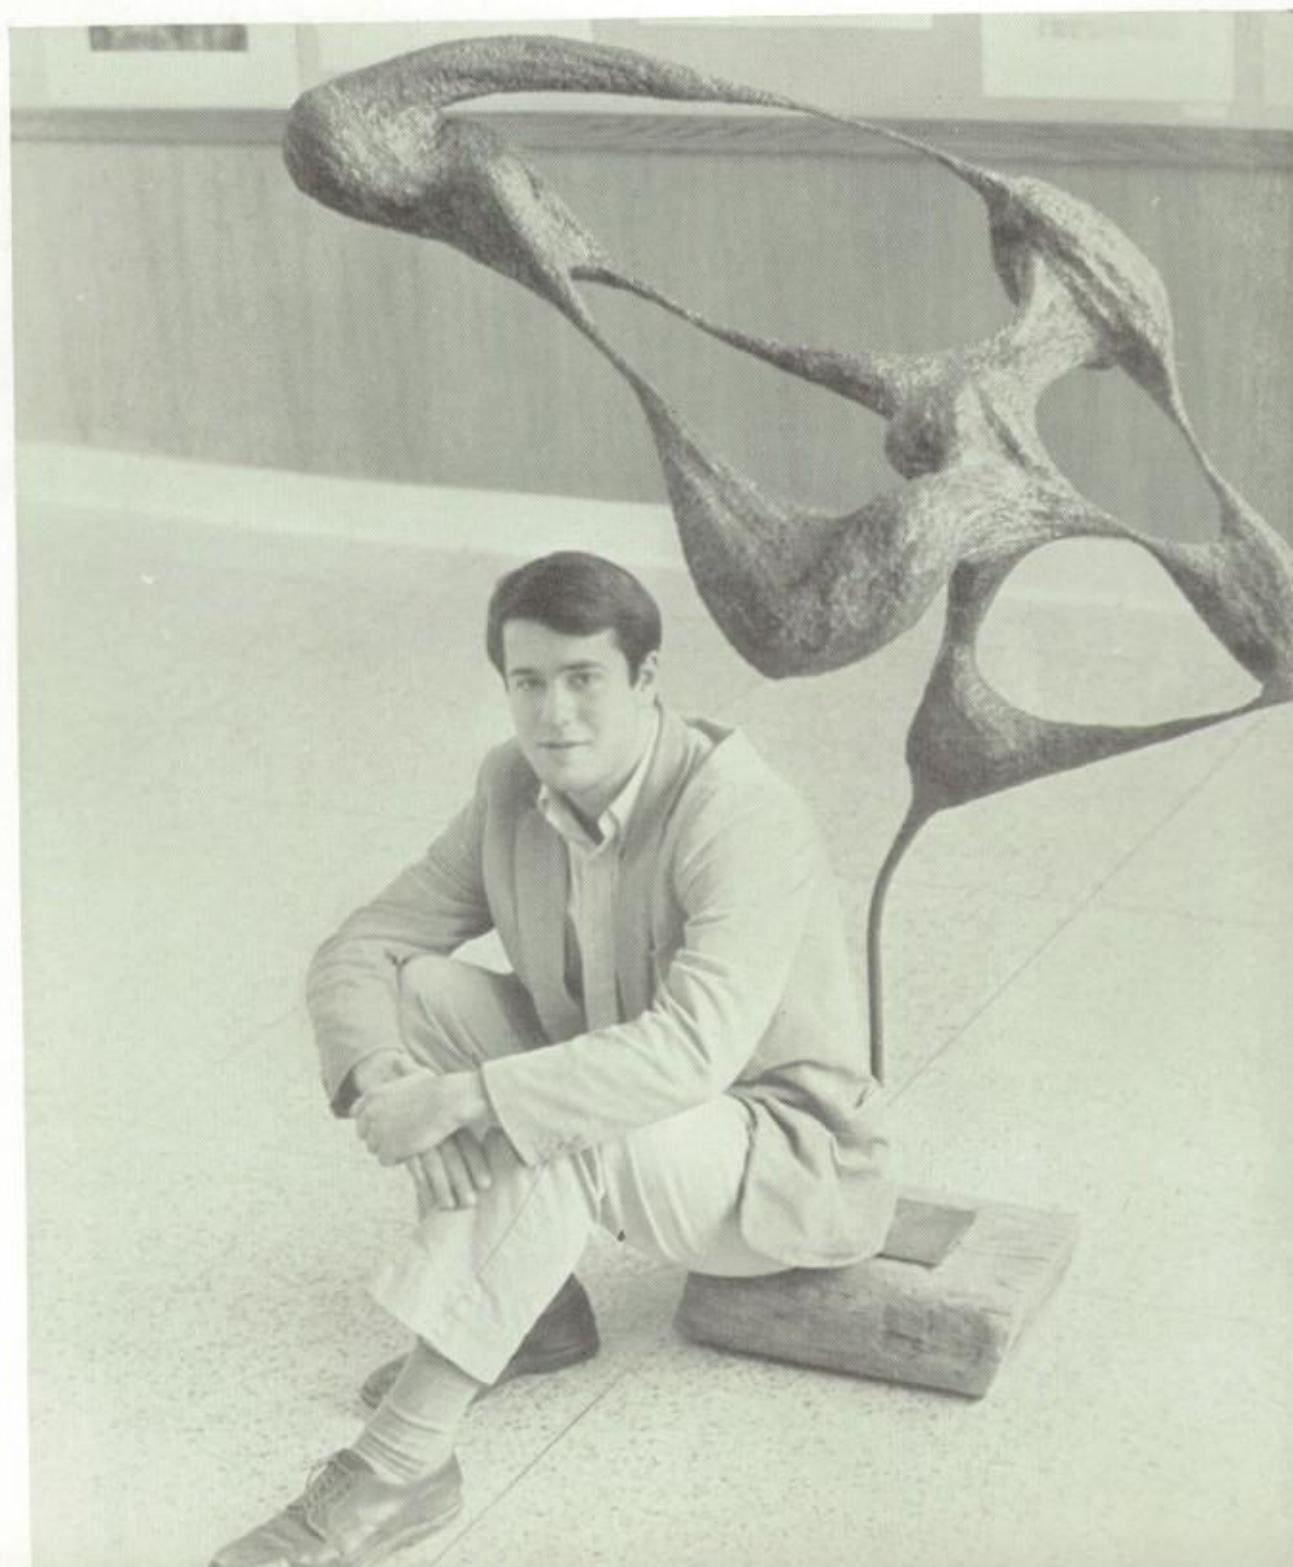

Art at New Trier is stressed as a cultural subject and approached culturally rather than practically. The various art courses aim at developing creative and appreciative faculties in the student as well as stimulating an interest in fine arts. The art courses offered range from drawing, painting, and design to ceramics and jewelry. The courses are skillfully taught by a seven-member faculty, who are all specialists in their individual fields.

In addition to the regular painting and drawing classes, Mr. Holland, the department head, holds a lecture course entitled Great Arts. He also gives lectures to foreign language and history classes on architecture and painting as a phase of cultural development. The lectures have been extremely informative and enthusiastically received by the students.

The fine art collections on the second floor, exhibited by various well-known Chicagoland artists throughout the year, were secured for showing by the art department. These exhibitions subtly served as a course in art appreciation.

The year ended with one of the finest student art shows ever presented. Oil paintings employing advanced mediums and techniques were shown starting the week before spring vacation. Noted artists in the show were Seniors Candy Bingham, Hal Migel, and Helen Morris, and Junior Gordon Rosberg.

Busy Photogs Snap, Develop, and Print

3500 MEMORABLE MOMENTS WERE CAPTURED BY

From casual observation, it would seem that nothing much ever happens around New Trier's photography lab, but this is a false impression. The seat of most of New Trier's photographic activity, the photo lab, is a home away from home for the Photography Service, since it houses complete studio facilities including two complete portrait lighting setups, equipment for photocopying, and eighteen overhead lights for group shots. This studio is used by photography classes, the Lens Club, and ECHOES, News, and publicity photographers.

Darkroom facilities include eleven enlargers with a variety of enlarging lenses. Film is developed in any of three negative rooms, in which the water temperature can be thermostatically controlled to within $\pm \frac{1}{2}$ degree Fahrenheit for processing color materials. There is also a classroom section which serves as a meeting place for photographers.

The photo lab equipment, originally costing over $12,000, is available for use by anyone with a genuine interest in photography. Many students use the photo lab for exhibiting their work, as can be seen by the variety of pictures dotting the walls. Lens Club prize-winning photos, Kodak contest-winning photos, and an upside-down picture of Captain Gadske are also exhibited.

Under the able supervision of mild-mannered Mr. D. Smith (who claims that "all those darn kids do is loaf"), the Photo Service managed to produce upwards of 3,500 pictures for ECHOES, the New Trier News, the Hollister papers, and other publications. Ralph Schatz and Joe Steinberg, ECHOES co-photography editors, assisted by Juniors Bob Rau and Barry Fox and by Sophomores Dave Brode and Paul Cherpak, provided ECHOES with an abundant supply of superb material typifying the epitome of photographic excellence. Mark Walker, photography editor of the New Trier News, assisted by Ken Gumbiner, Tom Actipes, and miscellaneous ECHOES photographers, made excellent pictures for that publication. Tom Actipes was also head of publicity photography, taking pictures for the Hollister papers and other publications.

Resounding Victories

DEBATERS WERE THE VICTORS IN THE THREE LEAGUES IN WHICH THEY COMPETED.

New Trier High School's varsity debate team captured the Illinois High School Association State Championship held at the University of Illinois in Champaign, a feat last accomplished by New Trier over ten years ago. Teammates Steve Edelman, Dave Nexon, Roberta Pollack, and Bob Weinberger triumphed over 200 representatives from participating schools to sweep the tournament with an impressive 8-0 record. Five other schools tied for second place honors, each registering two defeats.

Certainly the tremendous success of the team served as a deserving tribute to Mr. Ralph McGee. Mr. McGee has been coaching New Trier debate squads for the past 8 years. This has been the fourth that he has led to the national tournament. Mr. McGee has the distinction of being one of the few coaches in the nation to have won the "diamond key award." This honor was bestowed by the National Forensic League on the basis of his teams' participation and success throughout the years.

The state victory was the highlight in the current season which included an unprecedented dual victory in both of the leagues in which New Trier participated. The team prevailed over a 16 team field representing both Illinois and Indiana schools in the Metropolitan Debate Union and in the Suburban Interstate Debate League, which represented 12 teams from Wisconsin and Illinois. Debaters Nexon and Edelman also defeated two opposing schools on CBS television's debate series "Rebuttal."

The individual events program also demonstrated its excellence in competition throughout the year. Top honors were attained in original oratory, radio speaking, extemporaneous speaking, and after-dinner speaking. Sophomore Frank Feldinger qualified for the state tourney in after-dinner speaking and went on to place fourth there, aiding the team in capturing its second place "sweepstakes," or combined events, award. Earlier in the year Junior Roberta Pollack qualified for the national contest in girls' extemporaneous speaking.

The debaters completed the year by participating in the national tournament held at the University of Montana.

Expansion Keynotes Progress of WNTH

MORE PROGRAMS ON MORE SUBJECTS WERE BROADCAST BY AN ENLARGED STAFF.

WNTH, New Trier's own FM station, now boasts a staff of 121 students. The boys outnumber the girls; however, no one has complained yet. With its fine staff WNTH made much progress in its second year of broadcasting.

The station was on the air every weekday for more than six hours and on Fridays from 1:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. It greatly expanded and experimented with a variety of programs. Special taped series included "Student Forum," "Inside New Trier," and "Foreign Affairs Forum." WNTH broadcasted all football games, many swimming meets, all basketball games, gymnastics meets, and soccer games. Fifteen minute commentaries, interviews with Suburban League athletes and other informal interviews were also presented after many events. Such special events as the Centralia basketball tournament, the Illinois High School Athletic Association basketball tournament, the Winnetka Caucus Committee meeting, and PTA Night interviews were also broadcast live.

Music maintained a prominent place on the radio station with at least two shows daily. "Music from New Trier" and "When the Sun Goes Down," the Folk Singing Society's program, were presented once a week. A special new show, "Blast from the Past," which featured old 45 r.p.m. records, was put on at intervals during the year. Other new programs included "Community Calendar," announcements for service organizations; "Career Spotlight," and "Speak Up," in which students in speech classes gave original speeches.

The staff was proud not only of its very unexpected increase in size, but also of its "intellectual growth." This year's board's academic average for the first semester was 3.33. Phonograph records were broken, but a new record of 4:40 minutes of dead airspace was set during a lapse of organizational organization on February 7th. Surprised at their own success and wondering what they would do without Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops, the WNTH staff completed a year of fine programs and great public service.

The visual effects added by Jan Van Horne to his weekly basketball announcing made WNTH regret it could not expand to television. Here Jan celebrates an NT basket at the crucial Proviso game late in the season. (Schatz)

New Sounds, New Approach

Since the Playback staff had outgrown its former cramped quarters in the Technical Arts building, it resorted to writing this year's script in deserted train stations. This practice soon transformed previous formal working sessions into song fests and a culminating square dance under the watchful eye of an otherwise obscure C&N RR clock.

The staff, learning from last year's experience, made flexibility the main requirement for their theme. By portraying a chaotic day at New Trier, they felt they could include the maximum amount of events and people on the record. Especially stressed were sounds, so that music from the opera, Lagniappe, and the "Elijah" oratorio play a much more important role. Many more familiar voices are a result of Playback's new policy to have popular events narrated by the people usually participating in and associated with them.

The disorganized staff created an equally confused cover designed to attract purchasers by its helter-skelter one-inch square portrayals of diverse scenes in New Trier life. An extension of the members' humor is incorporated in the record's label, a distortion of the RCA's "his master's voice" in which an arm is reaching out of the phonograph to snatch the unassuming pup.

A final word of advice from the staff concerning their symphonic masterpiece is that the disc is best appreciated when listened to in the shower.

Effective Inklings Reforms

Effective Inklings reform made the dream of "more contributors and a greater variety of interest" come true, when the selections of 20 contributors were chosen. The medium of photography was added to the prose, poetry and drawings traditionally found in this magazine of student creativity.

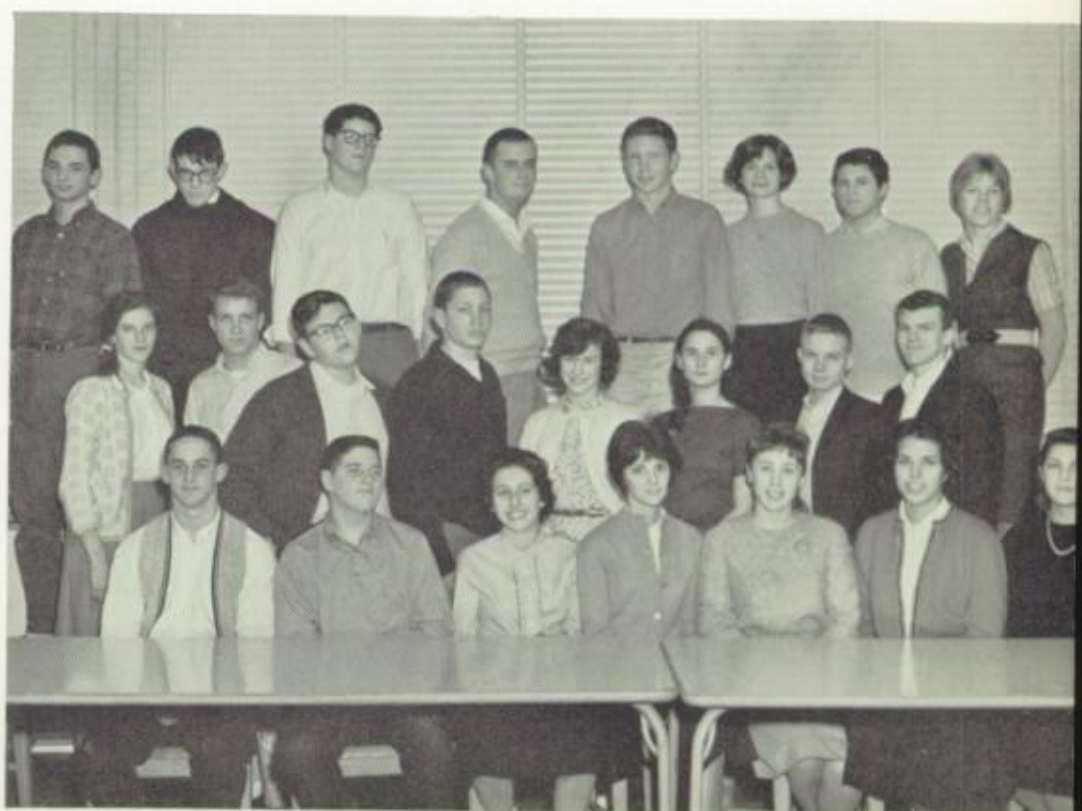

The new approach was successful because of the attitude of the editors Peter Clark, Melinda Guttman, and Dave Nexon: "Without sacrificing quality we are trying to get a larger cross-section of work at New Trier." More prose and more humor gave the magazine a larger student audience, while art was allowed to stand on its own merit, rather than being chosen to illustrate the writing.

The discussion that student writers find at Inklings meetings is certainly unrivaled at New Trier. Inklings is not just a magazine, but also a group of creative students who enjoy sharing in critical discussion. Hearing criticism of their work often encouraged writers to be contributors to the magazine, for they found that they were understood after all. The editorial opinion was that "there are so many quiet people who write well. We usually see only the exhibitionists." Inklings has begun to move away from its former exclusively esoteric content toward its true position as a magazine of representative student writing.

The various methods of printing Inklings are discussed by the staff members. (Schatz)

Le Flambeau Fait Vibrer les Ames Francaises

Cette année, Le Flambeau est le résultat de beaucoup de travail et effort littéraire. Les personnels ont édité, tapé, vendu, et arrangé la revue. Contributions sont venues de toutes les classes. Il y avait beaucoup de poésie, un peu de prose, des caricatures, et des illustrations dessinées par le comité d'art. Un poème qui y était compris suit. Il est écrit par Jane Whiteside, une élève de la troisième année de français.

La neige tombe silencieusement
Comme les petits pas d'un chat noir
Elle descend du ciel gris, et doucement,
Doucement elle couvre la terre attendante.

Schreiberei: ausgezeichnete Literatur

Schreiberei, the annual German publication, is a collection of stories, poems and short essays that are submitted by the students of the German classes. The purpose of the periodical is to give the German students the opportunity to read and write something of the German language. The writings are entirely original and written in an easily understandable style. Because the contributions to the publication are written by so many different students — beginners as well as advanced — Schreiberei contains something interesting for almost everybody. This year the following have worked on the editing under the direction of Bill Ray and Nancy MacLean: Richard Adler, Bob Evers, Sue Ferguson, Charlotte Kuh, Bill Reinsch, Mary Seaman, and Sue Stingl. The faculty adviser is Mr. Gordon Jensen.

Der Zweck der Zeitschrift ist, den Deutschschülern die Gelegenheit zu geben, etwas in der deutschen Sprache zu dichten und zu lesen. Die Schriften sind ganz originell und in einem leicht verständlichen Stil geschrieben. Da die Beiträge zur Herausgabe von vielen verschiedenen Schülern — sowohl von Anfängern als auch von Fortgeschrittenen — geschrieben werden, enthält Schreiberei etwas Interessantes für fast alle. Momentos de Expresion Artistica

De Todo un Poco, revista publicada bajo la dirección del departamento de español, es la obra de aquellos estudiantes de español que poseen cierta inclinación hacia la escritura. Su publicación les ofrece la oportunidad de expresarse artísticamente y, al mismo tiempo, diseminar sus ideas y compartir con sus condiscípulos el conocimiento derivado de sus estudios.

Ofrece, en general, como el título lo indica, "de todo un poco" en su contenido como en su preparación. Es decir, tiene sus sinsabores, momentos de placer, momentos de desesperación, y sobre todo, momentos de ánimo y satisfacción.

Award-Winning Press

THE NEWS STAFF TOOK TIME OUT FROM OTHER PASTIMES TO PRODUCE AWARD-WINNING PAPER.

When not devising diabolic plots against Student Council, the 14 members of the senior staff and the 17 members of the journalism class published the award-winning New Trier News. Under the eagle eye of Mr. Robert (King) Boyle, the News staff also presented the annual Gridiron show which satirized certain aspects of school life. Other favorite pastimes included cutting out paper dahls and printing counterfeit out-of-room permits.

The staff produced 28 issues including the special two-page Freshman Night issue. The News was not distributed on Fridays that were holidays or were after vacations since the staff was not able to complete its work at those times.

The rigorous production schedule of a News entailed one week plus five days of work. On Monday assignments were distributed. Wednesday was the deadline for feature stories, Thursday news stories were due, and Friday any last-minute stories were turned in. Over the weekend the paper was laid out, the editorial and headlines were written, and the sports pages were completed. Galleys were received and proof read on Monday, and the stories were thumbtacked to their proper places in the dummy (lay-out). On Tuesday the final proofs were pasted to the dummy. Each editor pasted up the stories and pictures which concerned his department. And Wednesday the cycle began again with another feature deadline.

In March the paper again received the Medalist Award (top award in the division) from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. But in spite of the award, the News staff did have some weak spots. One member was a pyromaniac who set fire to coat pockets and popcorn. Another called up Brookfield Zoo to ask: "May I speak to Mr. Lyon?"

During the year the News solved many of New Trier's most pressing problems, including the Dining Hall, Student Council, Lagniappe and pride pins. They also ran notable features on the SPU, New Trier, and disarmament. At the end of a long year, the News staff could look back with pride at its accomplishments knowing that next year's staff would carry on in the same fine tradition.

Green Vs. Lavender

THE SELECTION OF THE COVER'S COLOR WAS ONE OF THE MANY PROBLEMS OF THE ECHOES STAFF.

It has been said that the only reason strangers attempt to visit the ECHOES office is to see the superb collection of Ann-Margret Olson pictures mounted on the wall. ECHOES staffers, however, are equally fond of a sprig of three-month-old mistletoe suspended over one of the desks, and a large wooden frame in the corner divided into 48 little holes and charmingly called a "mailbox."

Cleverly concealed by frequent intra-staff romances, daily Sanskrit lessons, and a steady barrage of political debate, was the staff's raison d'être: to publish a yearbook. ECHOES, hampered by an odd assortment of photographers who frequently lapsed into artistic chaos, and by a wild-eyed band of eccentric editors, just barely met the May 1 publisher's deadline. However, before post-deadline rigor mortis set in, several ECHOESites gaily set off for Iowa City for two days of eating Amana sausage and correcting proofs.

ECHOES '62 is the end result of eleven months of thought and planning. The editors agreed to expand the book 32 pages to allow for more candid pictures. A practical layout design was put into effect, and many mob pictures were replaced by informal shots. In an attempt at extravaganza, the pictures were uniformly larger, and the three-column page was reduced to an attractive two. The most vicious policy conflict which tore asunder the ECHOES '62 staff, however, was whether to have a green or lavender burlap cover. Green won out by a narrow majority, but one lavender burlap ECHOES exists, lovingly cared for by the editor-in-chief.

The staff of ECHOES '62 was the largest in many years. So seldom was the entire staff seen together that notorious ECHOES dinners were held for strategy scheming.

Beyond the regular staff were three others whom ECHOES would like to thank: photographers Bob Rau and Barry Fox, and layout assistant Rich Tanzmann.

ECHOES editors were unable to decide whether to chortle or wring their hands over the year's efforts, but the general consensus was that the year was heart-warming, and the New Trier News editors most cooperative about lending typewriters to a rival publication.

A First Division Finish

New Trier's varsity football team, riddled by injuries in its early games, still managed to have a good season and take third place in the Suburban League.

In their first game the Indians were snowed under by a strong Hinsdale eleven. Hinsdale's stout defense as well as their strong running attack kept the varsity baffled and handed them a defeat.

On the following Saturday the Indians met Evanston in the rain. The Wildkits, who were later to become Suburban League champions, proved too much for New Trier. Although they played a much improved game the Indians were again beaten.

At Waukegan, a week later, the Indians again met rain but this time were more prepared for it as they smothered the Bulldogs 36-6.

Back at Phelps Field on the next Saturday the Indians were beaten by a very speedy Proviso East team. This, however, was the last loss that New Trier suffered during the season. From this point on the Indians won four straight games, each by more than two touchdowns. The highlight of the season came in the Morton game when the Indians rallied in the second half to win and cop third place in the Suburban League.

At the annual football banquet All-Suburban League full-back Jim Haugsness was awarded the Edward V. Kasselberg Memorial Trophy by his teammates for outstanding leadership and sportsmanship. Brian Donnegan and Rick Buesch were elected next year's co-captains to succeed Bruce Thorsen and Tim Ade.

J.V.'S ARE CHAMPS AGAIN

With two defeats over Oak Park and one over Morton, the junior-varsity team led the Suburban League. This was the seventh straight year that they had captured the title. Outside the league, however, the Chiefs did not fare so well, losing to Maine West and Glenbrook and tying St. George, bringing their over-all record to three wins, two losses, and one tie.

Most J.V. games featured the scoring of wingback Mike Grossman and the running and passing of the team captain, tailback Denny Thoman. The Chiefs had a very strong defensive line which played well as a unit and kept all their opponents' scores relatively low.

Dennis Thoman rounds the end as Tom Weatherford and Bill Kruger come over to lead the interference. (Steinberg)

Oncoming Ponies

After a very slow start, New Trier's sophomore football team gained momentum, winning their last five games and copping third place in the Suburban League. Led by Dave Bell, who scored an amazing 134 points from his tailback position, the Ponies boasted one of the strongest running teams in league history.

In their first game, by tradition non-league, the Ponies met a strong Hinsdale eleven at Phelps Field. When the smoke finally cleared the score was 13-13.

On the next Saturday, the Ponies played Evanston on the opposition's muddy field. Rain also complicated matters as New Trier absorbed a 20-12 loss along with a good deal of water.

In the Waukegan game the Ponies again ran into rain as well as a stiff Waukegan defense. Bad breaks and many penalties hampered the New Trier offense as the Ponies lost 13-12.

In the Proviso game, the Ponies finally fulfilled their potential. From this point on they were unbeaten. New Trier soundly defeated Proviso East, Niles, Oak Park, Highland Park, and Morton. Although their slow start held the Ponies to third place in the Suburban League, their fine individual players will be of great value to the 1962 and 1963 varsity teams.

over every team they faced except Highland Park, the team that went on to first place in the Suburban League. Against the Little Giants a close and hard-fought game ended with the "A" squad behind 12-6.

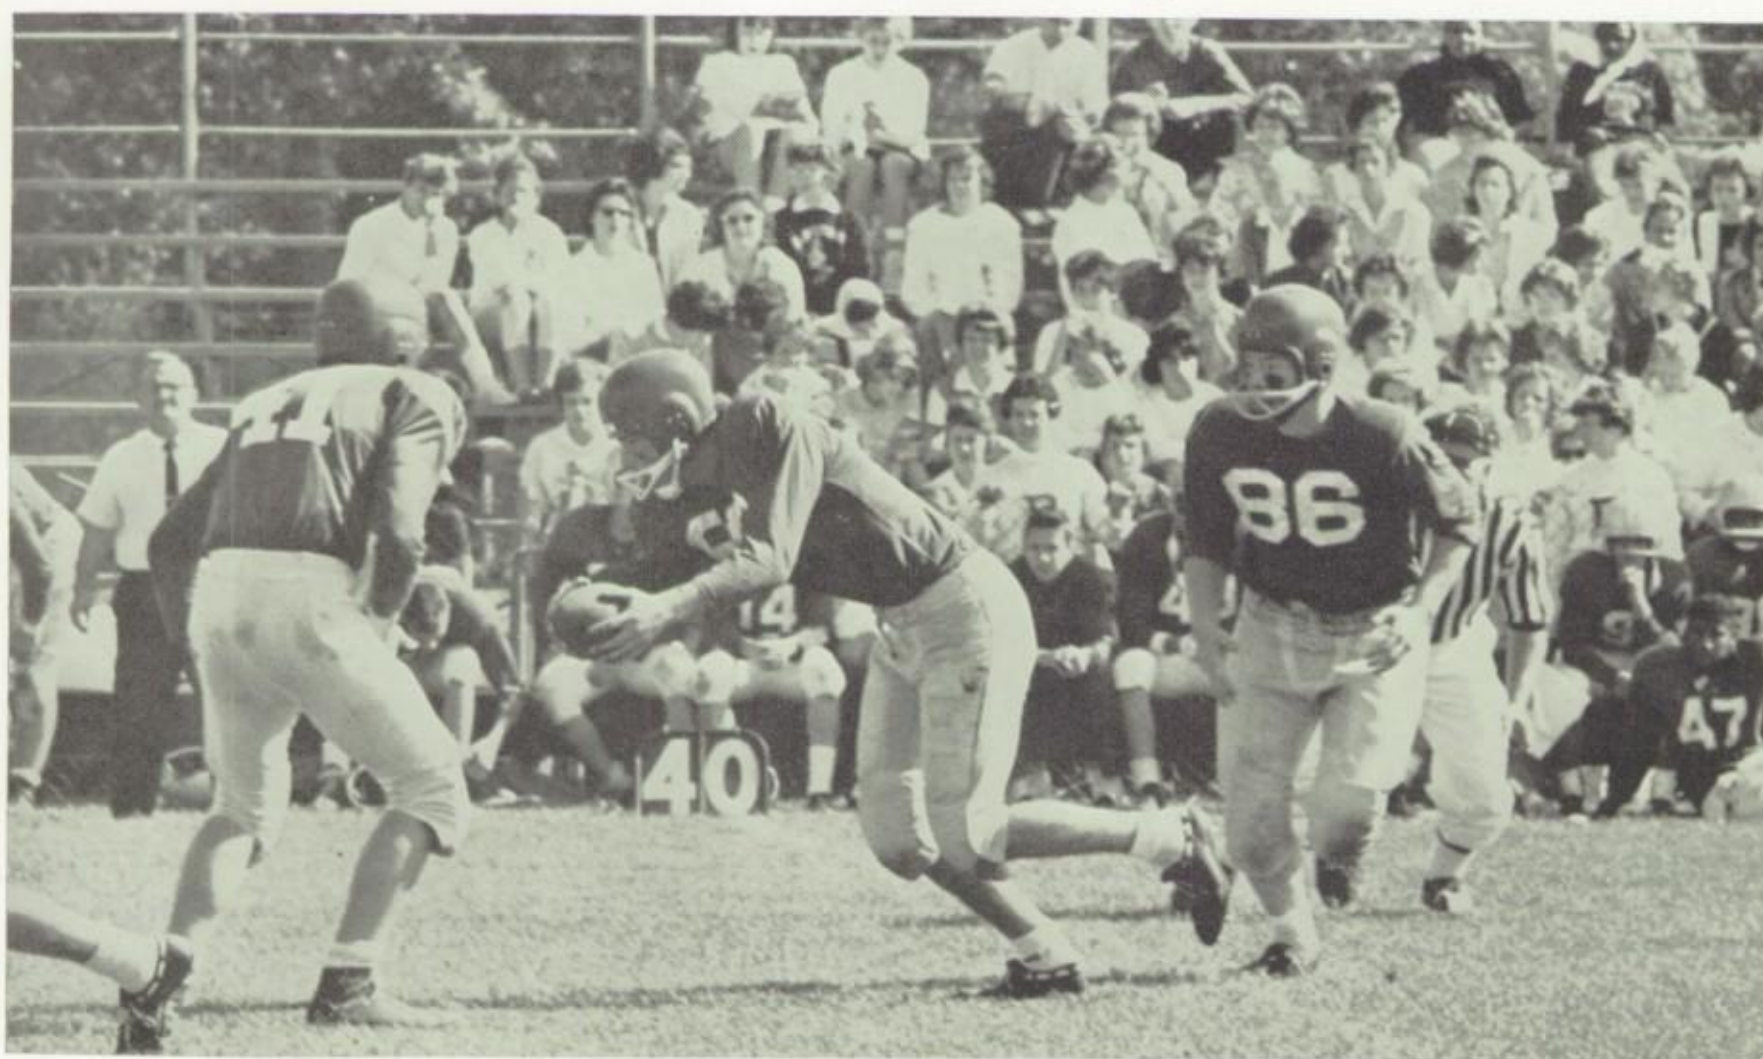

After an opening game defeat at the hands of Evanston, the Freshman "B" team went on to six straight victories, a second place finish in the Suburban League, and a 1-0 record outside the league. As is usual with the "B" squad, all its games were marked by good team play and no exceptional individual performances over the whole season.

Especially good prospects for next year's Sophomore team include "A" backs Fritz Newenhuyse and Bill Demmon. Linebacker Bill Pinsof was also excellent at defense.

Soccer Stars in First Season

This fall the varsity soccer squad became the first team in Illinois history to win a state championship in its first year of competition. By the end of the season, the Warriors had won eight games and had been awarded both the National Soccer League championship trophy (awarded to the best prep team in the state) and a fireplug, generously donated by the Evanston Public Works Department, which will become the traditional NT-Evanston trophy.

The soccer team was led by New Trier's foreign legion of A.F.S. students, Hans Biffl and Sefik Yuksel. Biffl, from his left inside position, scored fifteen of New Trier's twenty-four goals. Just as potent was their defense, headed by the captain and goalie, Bud Osborne and junior right fullback, Joe Passinato, who held the opposition to only six goals during the entire season.

The state all-star team, elected by referees of the Illinois Soccer Association, included Biffl, Yuksel, and center half-back Steve Behm on the first team, Passinato and Jim Buchanan, the right wing, on the second team. Osborne received honorable mention.

The Frosh-Soph team also had a successful season. The Papooses, led by sophomore Mike Center, had a 7-1 record. Their only loss was at the hands of Evanston, whom they shut out later in the season.

Harriers Third in League

The varsity cross-country team took third place in both the Suburban League and state district meets this year, losing only to the top two teams in the state, Evanston and Highland Park.

Coached by Mr. Ben Almaguer, the varsity team was led by Tim Renn, captain, who placed fifth in the two-mile run at the state meet. Renn just missed placing third when he collapsed ten yards from the finish line. He had a time of 10:12 after the winning time of 10:03.

Other outstanding varsity runners were: Dell Mitchell, Rick Blatchford, Chris Hixon, George Brandenburg, and John Hunter. The team did exceptionally well, according to Mr. Almaguer, considering that it had lost much of its power when last year's Senior Class was graduated. When the Harriers lost their meet with Evanston, it was the first time that they had lost in three and one-half years.

The frosh-soph team, coached by Mr. Frantzen, was plagued by injuries but finished well, winning five meets and losing three. The Harriers, who took third place in the league meet, show much potential for next year's frosh-soph and varsity teams in runners John Laidlaw, Bruce Brook, Ted Ferris, Barry Fitzpatrick, Doug Hunter, Will Linfesty, John Moulding, Dave Nickel, and Dave Fullerton.

Undefeated in Dual Meets

Dick Willhite clears the bar at the NT-Proviso meet. (Steinberg)

The varsity indoor track team went undefeated in dual meet competition, winning its first six meets before taking second in the Suburban League Meet behind Highland Park. A week after the league meet, the team took a third place in the Evanston Relays behind Highland Park and host Evanston.

To finish the season, the cindermen won the Morton Big Ten Meet in the last event. Behind going into the eight-lap relay race, the team composed of Dick Barnicke, Chris Hixon, Greg Syfert, and Brian Ferguson set a new meet record of 2:42.0 and won the meet over La Grange by one-half point. Other individual winners in the "Big Ten" were Scott Etnyre in the high jump and Tim Renn in the mile, both of whom set meet records. Etnyre and Dick Willhite were the team co-captains.

The sophomore team compiled a respectable 3-2 record in dual meet competition, winning two meets by completely lop-sided scores and losing one by only four points. The team was particularly valuable to the varsity in the multiple team relay meets at the end of the season, adding many needed points to the varsity scores. Such runners as John Laidlaw in the hurdles, John Moulding in the quarter-mile, and Bob Melchiorre in the mile were especially important to the team's good showing.

The freshmen took part in only four meets as an independent team and had a fairly dismal record, but combined with the other teams in the relay meets were considerably better. Particularly valuable for the freshmen was hurdler Ken Hall, who shows good promise for the years to come.

A Season of Individual Excellence

The varsity outdoor track team qualified eight individuals and two relay teams for the state meet final in Champaign. Only bad luck and injuries kept this total from being higher, as Steve Davidson was outrun in the springs, Chris Hixon suffered a recurrence of a leg injury in his qualifying hurdle heat, and co-captain Dick Willhite missed 5'11" in the high jump, a height which he had cleared many times before in competition.

In the field events, the cindermen qualified Tom Leahy and Randy Mercein in the shot put, Chuck Halaska in the broad jump, and co-captain Scott Etnyre in both the high jump and the pole vault. In the individual running events, the qualifiers were Tim Renn in the mile run, and Tom Cook and Rich Blatchford in the half-mile. Both the half-mile relay and mile relay teams were selected to go down-state.

In other competition, the varsity finished second in the district meet, first in a triangular meet, fourth in the Waukegan Relays, and a close second in the Maine East Relays.

The sophomore team won one out of the two dual meets in which they participated, losing the other by a close margin. Especially promising for varsity competition next year were sophomores John Moulding, John Laidlaw, Gordy Segerston, and Bob Melchoire.

The freshmen had an unfortunate season, losing two dual meets, but showed promise for future improvement. Their most consistently high placing runner was Ken Hall in the hurdle events.

The Crowning Success of 32 Years

New Trier's varsity basketball team had its most successful season in thirty-two years. The Indians tied for first place in the Suburban League with Waukegan, whom they later vanquished in a regional game of the state tournament.

The Indians started off their season with a stunning upset over heavily favored Maine East, but this surprise was only the first of many. The Indians compiled an over-all record of 17-5.

The highlights of the season were the victories over Proviso East and Waukegan. The Proviso East contest was a typical come-from-behind New Trier victory. At the start of the game both teams were tied for first place in the Suburban League. Most experts felt that the team that won the game would emerge as league champion. As it turned out, they were only half-correct. Proviso East led for the first three quarters but in the final period the Indians caught fire and pulled away to a 61-55 win. This fourth period rush was led by the "Chinese-bandits," seniors Gordy Adams and Dave Lynch.

The varsity was led during the season by Scott Etnyre, captain and senior guard. Besides being a defensive star, (Continued on page 109)

The Waukegan game took place in the finals of the State Regional Tournament. This was also a close game with Waukegan taking an early lead and New Trier pulling ahead in the final quarter. In the Sectional Tournament, New Trier was defeated by a tall St. Patrick team.

At the annual basketball banquet the varsity cagers had as guest speaker Fred Taylor of Ohio State. Besides the presentation of awards, the varsity elected Tom Nisbet as next year's captain. With three returning regulars, the prospects for next year's team are excellent.

The junior varsity team had a season's record second only to the varsity, losing only to the league co-champions Proviso and Waukegan. John Williams was the team's leading scorer. Although the J.V.'s had a short team, the other starters, Al Ovson, John Major, John Kremer, and Tom Grisamore provided the speed and aggressiveness necessary for a winning season, and along with other Juniors on the team show promise for next year's varsity.

The Sophomore basketball team, the shortest of all of New Trier's teams, had a relatively poor season. The Ponies, with no starter over six feet, could not contend with their taller opponents. The Sophomores, coached by Mr. Etnyre, lost four games by less than 4 points. They did have several individual stars to take some of the gloom away from their dismal 4-10 record. Freshman Dave Major scored many times in double figures as did Sophomore Bob Claire.

The Freshman A team tied for 5th place in the Suburban League race with Highland Park. The Frosh A team did not feature any one high scorer, but the services of Forward Bill Demmon, Center Don Rindfleisch and Guard Steve Anprin led the Braves to a 5-7 season record. The team was coached by Mr. Parker.

The Frosh B team had an excellent season record of 9-3, making them second among New Trier's teams in total wins. The "B's" prowess earned them second place in the Suburban League behind Waukegan. Coach Jerry Morgan named Bill Bronner and Dave Fisher as the team's two leading players.

State meet backstrokers off to a flying start. (Steinberg)

State Champions Once Again

Considered underdogs in state competition at the start of the season, New Trier's varsity swimming team outswam "superior" Evanston and Hinsdale squads to capture their thirteenth state championship and successfully defend the title they have held for five of the last six years.

Restricted at the beginning of the season by a new Suburban League rule limiting practicing and coaching, the varsity, led by captains Doug Gray, Phil Miller, and Don Shanley, quickly emerged as the state's top swimmers, losing only two dual meets, while capturing titles in the Dolphin and Indian Relays, the Suburban League meet, the District swimming meet, and the Illinois state meet held at Evanston. Miller and Barry Fisher, outstanding senior freestyle men each placed in two events at the state meet. Shanley, New Trier's top backstroke, took a fourth place in the state, while Rick Sawyer, who established a new varsity breaststroke record, took second in the 100-yard breaststroke event.

Supporting the senior attack were juniors Jack Kiefer, a double state champion in both the 100-yard butterfly and the 200-yard individual medley, and Bill Burson, who placed second in the 400-yard freestyle and third in the 200-yard freestyle.

The final outcome at the state meet saw New Trier on top with 74½ points, followed by Evanston with 71 points and Hinsdale with 66 points.

Dave Robertson and Ray Essick, veteran swimming coaches at New Trier, were aided by diving coach Dick Becker, who, in his initial year as coach, produced the two finest divers in Illinois—state champion Tom Hutcheson, a senior, and runner-up Brent Bersbach, a junior.

The sophomores, possibly the finest ever at New Trier, easily won the Suburban League championship, defeating Evanston by fifty-six points. Outstanding were the three captains, Dave Bergman, Phil Chase, and Jim Props, and breastroker Steve Shapiro, who ranked high in state competition.

The above average freshman squad finished second in the Suburban League, surpassed only by a strong Evanston team. The boys showed good potential under the leadership of captains Tom Gray, Gerry Miller, and Tom Peck.

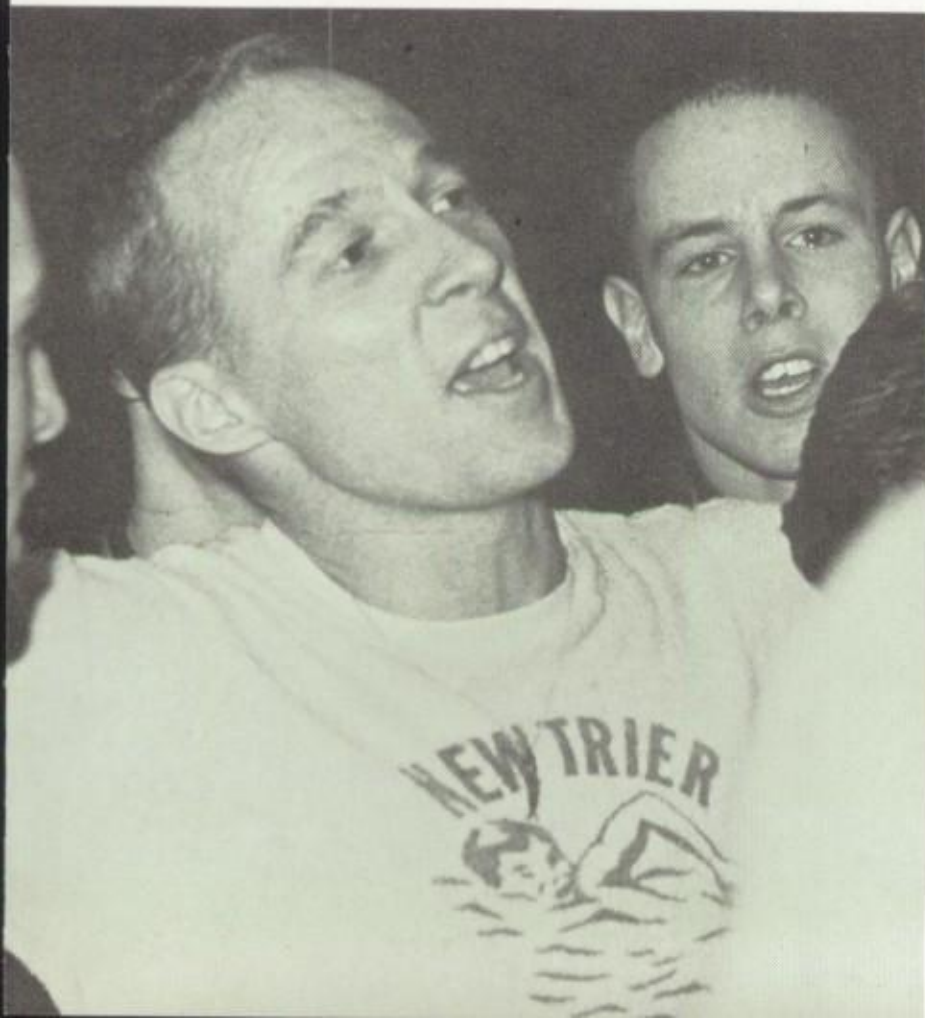

The Ned Schroeder Memorial trophy, awarded annually to the graduating swimmer who best exhibits qualities of leadership, sportsmanship, and responsibility was awarded to Phil Miller.

Tension from the sidelines: Rick Buesch, Mr. Hurley, Don Behm and Jim Braun wait for victory. (Steinberg)

Wrestlers Finish Well

The beginning of the varsity wrestling season was marked by nine straight dual meets without a victory, as Coach Hurley was greatly hampered by a lack of experienced wrestlers in certain weight divisions. As the season progressed, however, the team increased tremendously in skill and experience, and as a result ended the season with three victories out of their last four dual meets.

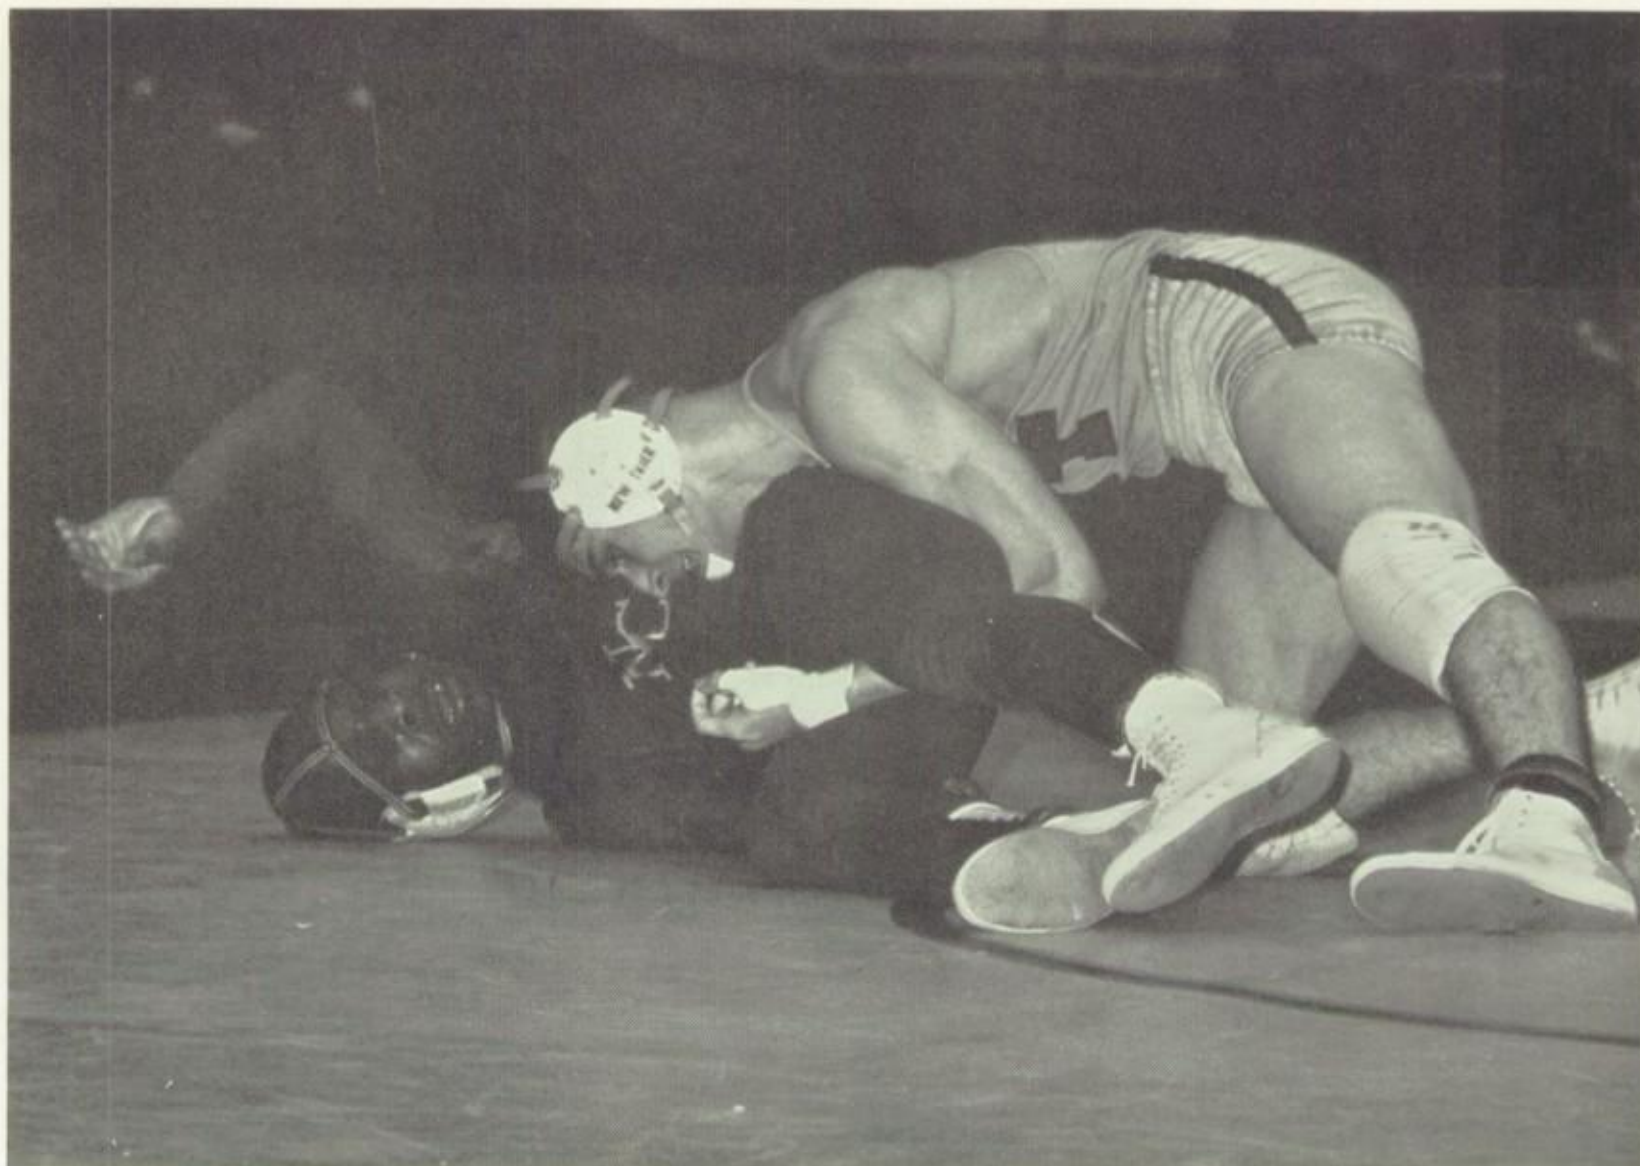

In district and sectional competition, the varsity surprised all opponents by very strong second and third place finishes, respectively. From these two meets Don Behm and co-captains Don Dominick and Steve Wishart progressed to the state meet at Arlington Heights. As a team, they took eleventh place with fifteen points, and individually, Don Behm took the state title at 120 pounds.

Behm's victory in the state meet final was a fitting end to a superlative season in which he won all of his twenty-three matches, including a pin in the state final over his Reavis opponent. At the wrestling banquet at the end of the season, Behm was chosen co-captain of next year's team, along with Pete Diltz.

The sophomores finished with a 6-7 dual meet record with a team that was very strong in some weight divisions. Especially promising for filling in the varsity at spots where they are needed are Steve Theobald, Tom Factor, Rick Nelson and Ira Rose, along with Captain Bruce Wald.

The freshmen, captained by George Mather, had a team separate from the sophomores for the first time. Individuals who proved outstanding over the season were Don Joseph, Jim Martinson, and Barry Cook.

Excellent Year for Gymnasts

Losing only two out of thirteen dual meets throughout the season, the varsity gymnastics team finished the year in good form by tying for first place in the Suburban League with Proviso East and capturing sixth place in the state meet. The most thrilling meets of the year were those against Niles East and Proviso East, both of which were won by New Trier. Because of good publicity, most home meets were well attended by gymnastics fans, which boosted team morale considerably.

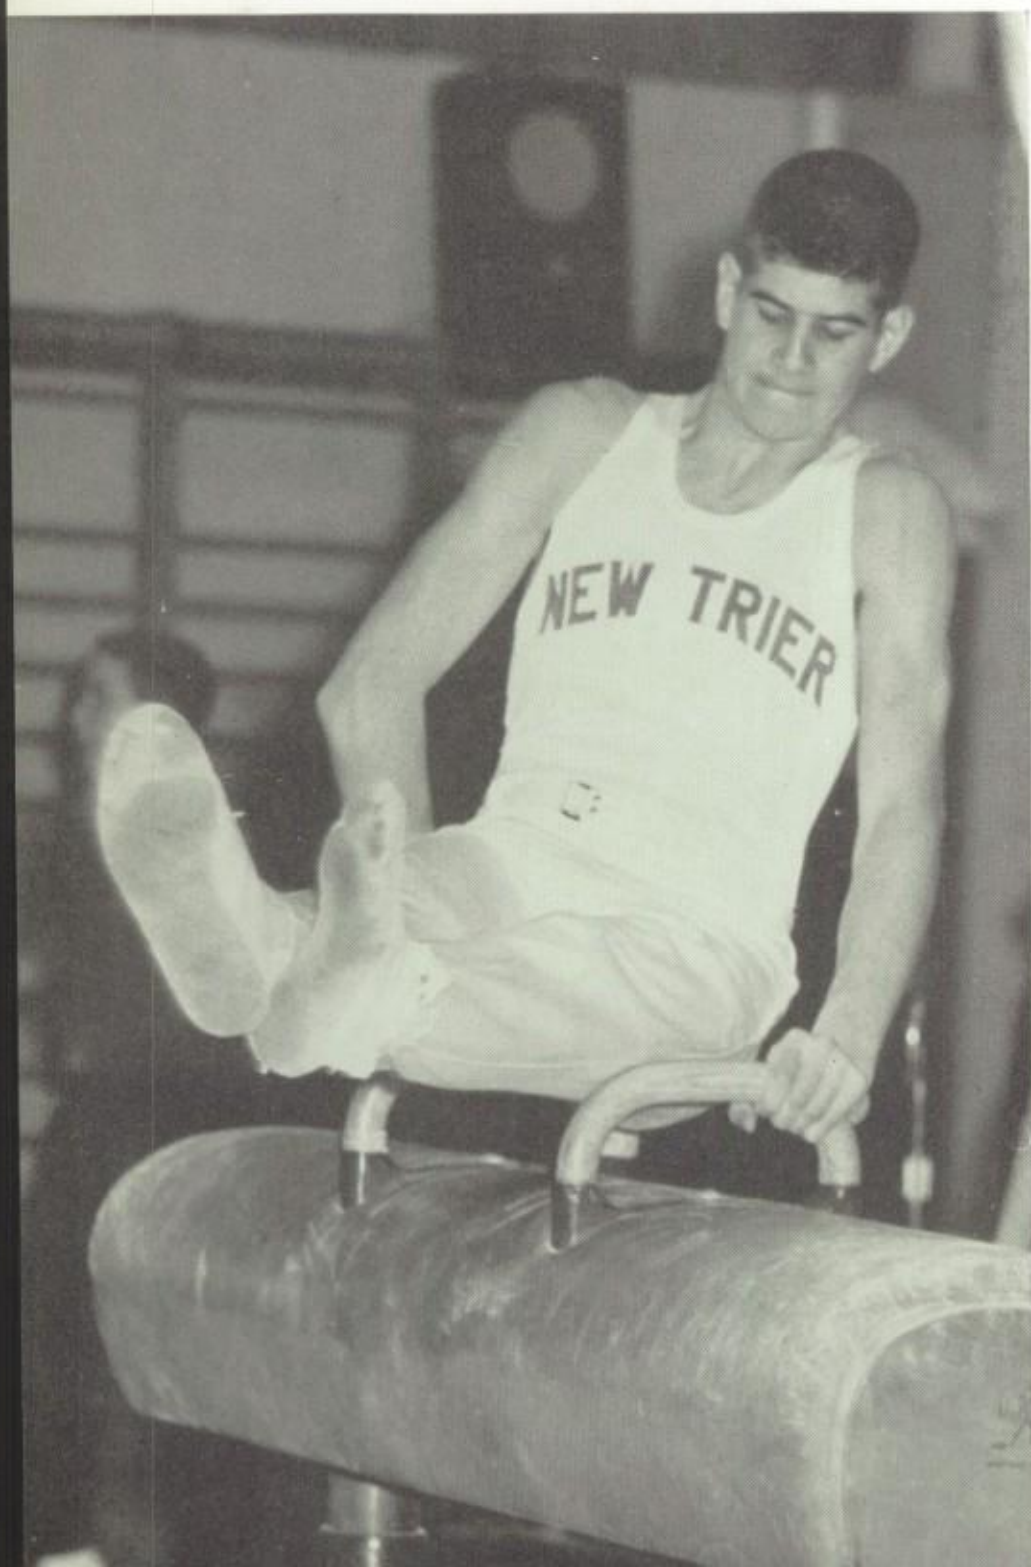

The strongest events on the varsity squad were the high-bar, with John Cashman and Stan Thompson, co-captains, and Ted Wilson; and the parallel bars, with Chuck Bernstein, Tom Fitch, and Ted Wilson. Wilson excelled in the all-around event which includes highbar, rings, parallel bars, and side horse. Thompson was the most improved member of the varsity squad and was one of the five men who competed in the state finals.

While most of the varsity team were seniors, there are equally strong juniors coming up who will be the backbone of next year's team. Excellent this year were Chuck Bernstein on parallel bars, John Hooker on rings, Rick Schneider, and Marty Rosen.

Led by a strong varsity squad, the freshman-sophomore team showed much improvement during the season and great potential for next year. Three sophomore trampolinists, Don Oberendorf, Perry Miller, and Ray Walker, competed in the state meet, an excellent achievement for sophomores. The most outstanding members of the frosh-soph team were Steve Kaiser, Larry Goldberg, and Gary Verne. Perry Miller was slated as showing the most improvement over the season.

Varsity Coach Joe Giallombardo and frosh-soph Coach Mr. Schabel were exceedingly proud of their teams this year and expect great work next year also.

Batmen Fly Off For Another Season

At press time the varsity baseball team had a record of eight wins, one tie, and five defeats. The Indians won the Glenbrook district tournament with wins by twenty-one and eight runs, respectively, over St. George and Evanston, and at press time were tied for third place in the Suburban League. Because of their good play in their last few games, they had a chance to do well in the regional tournament and perhaps go even farther in the state competition. At the rate the team had improved since the beginning of the season, they were capable of finishing well in a tight league race.

The varsity was led by co-captain Dave Lynch and Gordy Adams, two of last year's best regulars. The pitching was handled by starters John Smart and Al Oppenheimer, with Bob Nelson and Ed D'Ancona filling in as relievers when needed. The infield was composed of either Bill Stephens or John Kramer at third, Arnie Lordahl at short, Tom Nisbet at second, and John Burpo at first. The outfield was covered by John Major in right, Adams in center, and either Bob Voigts or Rich Johnson in left.

Offensively the ballhawks were led by strong hitting throughout the lineup. Particularly outstanding were Adams, who was also last year's leading hitter, Burpo, and Voigts. This year was Ron Klein's first full season as head coach.

The sophomores had the unlucky fate of losing some very close one-run ball games to teams they might otherwise have beaten. They had a record of five wins and five defeats, with only two of these defeats being by more than one run. Don Frissell and Tom Grey were the best hitters for the sophs, with Charlie Baby supplying the most effective pitching on a team that gave up a total of only sixty-seven runs in ten games.

The freshman "A" and "B" teams had a combined record of eight defeats and three wins, and true to past performances of freshman teams, have not looked too good in their playing, even without considering the scores of their games. Of the players who did well, however, the best were Dave Major and Dave Pinsof.

Too Many Bogeys

Coached by Mr. Grater, Mr. Fearheiley, and Mr. Leverentz, the varsity golf team had a varied year, winning three meets and losing five. The most exciting meet was with Evanston, which the golfers lost by only five strokes. The varsity took fifth place in the district meet behind Waukegan, Evanston, Glenbrook, and Highland Park.

Varsity men who played in the district meet were John Klein, Jim Freeman, Mike Gross, Steve Nanini, Ed Mee, Rick Stultz, and Bob Star. The team members played very even games, thus making the intra-team competition quite tough. The coaches were pleased with the work the juniors had done and expect a strong varsity next year.

The sophomores and freshmen did a fine job, having won all of their meets at press time. Mr. Carlstrom said that the Highland Park meet would be a close one, but he was confident that his team would pull through. The sophomores showed great potential this spring, and still will be good material for the varsity next year. Outstanding were Steve Richheimer and Kip Palmer, with Harwood, Porter, Rosenfels, and Rodgers backing them up effectively. The most promising freshmen were Aschbacher, Fields, Brill, and Bronner.

So Far Undeclared

Led by co-captains Bill Ewen and Steve Brenburg, the varsity tennis team was undefeated at press time, with a few matches still to be played. Because of their excellent record, the netmen had a good chance to take the Suburban League title and place high in the state (if they do not run out of string).

Besides playing extremely well in dual meet competition, the Indians qualified two doubles teams in the district tournament held at New Trief. Ewen and Brenburg beat teammates Kit Kaufman and John Hunter in a thrilling three set final. Playing singles in the district were Art Nielsen and Jay Huebsch. Nielsen lost his first round to a top seeded Waukegan player, while Huebsch battled his way to the semi-finals before being defeated.

The lineup for the first half of the season was Ewen, first singles; Erenburg, second singles; Huebsch, third singles; Kaufman and Hunter, first doubles; and a combination of Nielsen, Stew Leber, Lee Borden, and Sonny Knight at second doubles. Coaching the team were Mr. W. Hughes Davis and Mr. Jerry Morgan.

The sophomore squad, under coaches Ed Kahler and Art Tenney, was also undefeated. Bob Childs, Steve Gritton, Dick Karger, Jim Ingersoll, Austie Sherer, Jim Schock, and Eric Weissenberger were the regular starters. The large number of talented underclassmen coupled with many returning juniors promises strong teams again in 1963.

Games For Every Girl

ACTIVITIES FROM HOCKEY TO DANCE TO SWIMMING TO TENNIS WERE OFFERED FOR THE SPORTSWOMAN.

It is a motto of the Girls' Athletic Association that "there is a game for every girl," and in this regard, the year was an active one for the organization. A wide variety of sports as well as an opportunity for leadership were offered.

Fall began with a rush to introduce the Freshmen to the year-round program, and to organize the season's sports: field hockey, soccer, tennis, riding, and dance. The fall season ended with the class tournaments and the annual game of the first class Senior hockey team vs. the varsity interscholastic football team, an upset victory for the boys.

New rules made the major team sport of the mid-season, basketball, a faster game. Other sports offered in this quarter were riding; swimming; beginning, intermediate, and advanced dance; tumbling and apparatus; and recreational games. The big event of the season was the final contest between the winning class team and the women's faculty, which the faculty won, aided by a nimble scorer.

After the first two seasons were over, an assembly was held to distribute awards and to recognize those who had helped the organization. Ida Nawawi, our exchange student from Indonesia, gave a demonstration of her country's wedding dance and spoke about the differences between her two "homes."

Volleyball was the team sport of the winter season, with active participation and another climaxing game versus the faculty. This time, however, the girls ran true to form and won. Swimming, riding, fencing, ice skating, dryland skiing, table tennis, and dance were the other sports offered.

The main spring sport was speedway, which was replaced by softball as soon as it became warm. Advanced softball, lacrosse, archery, swimming, riding, and dance were the final sports of the year. The tennis program sponsored classes and a large tournament for girls, as well as a mixed doubles tournament in co-operation with I-M.

GAA helped sponsor several school events, such as a miniature golf course for the Halloween Party and the Indian Stampede, an annual school playday to promote school spirit.

Freshman initiation was marked by a "Clash Day" and a gym-jam, in which over two hundred girls participated. Their formal initiation took place at the banquet "Membership," with the traditional candle-lighting ceremony.

The big event of the year was the bi-annual water ballet. "Splash Flash" was based on the idea of a newspaper commentary. About 225 girls participated in the actual swimming and general running of the show, which was presented in late April.

The climax of GAA's program came on May 29th with the final award assembly and spring banquet to announce the new officers and board for 1962-1963.

Expansion Brings Success

INCREASED PARTICIPATION, STAFFS, AND PROGRAMS KEYNOTED I-M'S SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

MIKE BLEY
Points

The past year has been one of the most successful ever in the history of the intramural sports program at New Trier. During the course of the year the intramural staff was increased by about 15 members to a total of 60. Again participation continued near the 90 per cent level, with even greater numerical totals because of increased school enrollment. Mr. Fred Barney, Mr. Robert Bohl, and Mr. Wayne Wiermer provided invaluable aid as the faculty sponsors.

A reorganization of the intramural staff continued from the spring of 1961 was found to be extremely well adapted to this year's increased participation and program expansion. Under the plan, game supervisors and tournament managers became members of either the individual or team sports staffs. The publicity staff was divided into three sections: sports writers, display workers, and radio announcers.

Two new sports were added during the second semester to the already impressive schedule of events. These new tournaments were bridge and soccer. Bridge was held for four weeks during the late winter and early spring seasons on an individual basis. Soccer was played during the spring as a non-adviser room team sport. Both proved to be very popular and will become regular tournaments in the program.

As always, the highlight of the fall season was the football tournament. The winner of this tournament was the junior adviser room of Mr. Ray Fearheiley, which defeated Mr.

Howard Clark's seniors and Mr. Chuck Lauer's sophomores. Tennis, golf, and horseshoes were the individual sports held during the fall season.

In the winter season the most popular sport was basketball. The school championship was won by Mr. Jerry Morgan's senior adviser room. This sport was played in two shifts; juniors and seniors played before Christmas vacation, and the freshmen and sophomores after. In team handball the adviser room of Mr. Bruce James took the Senior Class title. Mr. James McFadzean's juniors and Mr. Lauer's sophomores were the other class champions. Also played during the winter season was team table tennis which was won by the junior adviser room of Mr. Austin Lindley. Individual table tennis and handball were also offered to interested boys.

The spring sports were wrestling, volleyball, soccer, softball, tennis, golf, bridge, and bowling. Bowling enjoyed immense popularity this year. There were eight teams competing in the tournament, which was held at the Northfield Bowl.

The highlight of the year for the intramural sports program was the annual field day, the Indian Stampede, held after the long exam week. The Stampede is the outgrowth of bicycle races held in the past. The bicycle races, class tug-of-wars, pushball tournament, and pie-eating contest were enjoyed by all.

PEOPLE

Regardless of the many hours spent by a student practicing football, harmonizing in the band, cheering the basketball team on at a game, or dancing in the Lounge at a No-name, a student's prize goal at New Trier is to obtain an education, and in doing so he takes every opportunity available to pursue his studies. (Schatz)

The Battle to Maintain Excellence

PROBLEMS RESULTING FROM NEW TRIER'S CONTINUINGLY RAPID GROWTH OCCUPIED MUCH OF THE ADMINISTRATION'S TIME.

The administration and the school board battled the problems of rapidly growing New Trier, since it is predicted that the number of students will grow from about 4,200 this year, to over 4,500 next year, over 4,800 the following year, and to almost 5,000 in the fall of 1964. By planning for new facilities and by redesigning internal arrangements while retaining distinguishing procedures, they are determined to maintain New Trier's famed excellence.

The further study of the various provisions for accommodating larger enrollments led to the appointment by the Board of a Citizens' Advisory Committee. Their report recommended a second four-year high school on a site in Winnetka. Negotiations for the site were not successful, and the Board turned to a reexamination of the whole problem, especially of the choice of a suitable location for a school of about 2500 students.

New policies in internal administration were determined by the population growth. The adoption of a new daily schedule enabled the school to list additional sections of courses in nine periods for major subjects. This was done to keep down the size of classes, but at the same time, it presented difficulties in taking daily attendance and in making the best use of the adviser period, which came in the middle of the day instead of in the morning. These difficulties were offset in large measure by the ease of scheduling students for lunch and by the marked reduction in the number of students in study halls during the lunch periods. Continuation of the adviser system and of moderate-sized classes (school average—27) avoided the harmful effects of mass treatment of students and carried on the practice of looking after each student as a separate human being.

Another innovation also had a profound effect on the school. The increasingly imaginative use of office machines was of considerable assistance in handling the bulk of clerical detail. Teachers were freed from large amounts of necessary record keeping to devote their energies to more productive occupations such as revising courses and conferring with students. Statistical studies and reports began to come from the office staff in more economical fashion than had been possible before, and the office staff was able to devote more time to supplying necessary information to students and teachers.

Curricular developments fostered by the Administration included the wider use of the School Mathematics Study Group materials in mathematics classes, the expansion of the English-Biology-History course for freshmen, and the refinement of the long examinations. MSG materials were used in all freshman algebra classes and in half of the sophomore geometry classes. The EBH group met for four periods each morning under the tutelage of six teachers (two from each department) in the Student Lounge, where they had space to divide into various-sized groups at different times in an application of the ideas of team teaching. The long examinations were studied anew for their emphasis on the major aims of each course and for their value in acquainting students with the kind of experience they will encounter in college.

The administration and board have completed a particularly busy year during which they were preparing for both a second high school and an increased enrollment at the present school.

Social and Scholastic Excellence

ACADEMIC EFFORTS AS WELL AS SOCIAL ACTIVITIES PROVED REWARDING FOR THE SENIOR CLASS.

The Class of '62, leaders of the school for the past year, left behind a record of outstanding achievement in school-wide activities. Because of this extensive participation in the various organizations, the class activities as such were limited. Even the class parties were delegated to another organization, the Canteen board.

The activities that were sponsored by the class were unqualified successes. In October the class officers, the steering committee, and the alternates gave a dinner for new Seniors to welcome them and inform them of the various activities in which they could participate.

The main social events given by the class were the Christmas dances. "Snowbound," the girls' Christmas dance, and "Quelle Nuit," the boys' New Year's Eve dance, had Alaskan and Parisian themes, respectively. The outstandingly creative and artistic decorations were much admired by the many couples who attended each dance.

The Seniors were rewarded for their services to the school and for their scholastic labors. Among the honors were college scholarships from the National Merit Corporation, from various memorials, and from individual colleges and universities. Prizes were also received in state and national math, science, and language contests. Nancy MacLean was awarded one of the annual Von Steuben awards for excellence in German.

At Christmas time the class lost their secretary, Sue Burchmore, when she moved to California. Roddy Whipple, who had received the second highest number of votes in the election, assumed her duties for the remainder of the year. The class was helpfully and patiently guided by the adviser chairmen, Miss Hamilton and Mr. Weingartner.

On June 8, the class celebrated the completion of their years at New Trier with the traditional Senior Picnic, this year slightly different from other years since it was not held at Gilson Park.

The class graduated in the now traditional two ceremonies on June 14. The adviser rooms were divided for the two commencements by a drawing from a hat. By an overwhelming vote the class chose to continue the wearing of long white formals and summer tuxedos. The four class officers marched in both ceremonies and President Dave Browder presented the class gift as the spokesman for the class.

Tom Hughey, first trumpet in Honor Band and Senior Orchestra, trills 1812 in the band room. (Rubinson)

NATIONAL MERIT SEMI-FINALISTS—FRONT ROW: Kuh, McVey, Rubinson, Warfield, Clark, Karlen, Devine. SECOND: Allison, Dallmeyer, Nexon, Sergel, Lehman, Snell. THIRD: Bennett, Brandenburg, Hughey, Kaffenberger, Macfarland, Kruger. ABSENT: Bladen.

The AFS glop throw claims another victim: Bill Leahy. (Steinberg)

A sprained neck fails to daunt Jean Rutherford's spirit. (Steinberg)

"The South Shall Rise Again," according to Bill Mohrman, President of the Civil War Round Table. (Steinberg)

Even at 8:00 A.M. Karen Yocum remembers to use perfect diction as she welcomes new members of Drama Club. (Rau)

"The New Frontier" and Other Parties

The Senior Canteen is the seniors' substitute for class parties. The Canteen board, chosen by the class officers, was headed by President Win Steubner. The board is responsible for the conception and planning, in short, all the work of canteens. The underlying plan of this year's board was to present dances which were different than Tri-Ship's and other class dances. The themes for the first three dances which were held this year were "The Roaring Twenties," "Behind the Green Door," and "The New Frontier." Seniors and their dates, who could be from any class, were asked to dress according to the mood of the party.

SENIOR CANTEEN BOARD—SEATED: Doke, Blair, Foster, Shankman, Fenn, Honaker. STANDING: Thorsen, Stuebner (president), Dashow, Sawyer, Harrington. (Schatz)

"The New Frontier" brought Seniors and their dates to dance, eat, and talk. (Actipes)

The Off-Beat Class

THE JUNIORS EXECUTED THEIR ORIGINAL AND CREATIVE PROJECTS WITH GREAT EFFICIENCY AND A GOOD DEAL OF ENTHUSIASM.

After a summer characterized by the expression, "Let's go swimming at Dawson's beach," the Junior Class started the school year off with a bang by winning both the originality and the creativity prizes for their float at the Dads' Day parade. The class float committee, headed by Dick Tinkham, constructed a monstrous bug with the inscription, "The Junior Class is bugging New Trier."

When the lively election campaign was completed, the class was efficiently and enjoyably led by President Patty Butow and Vice-President Brent Isgrig. Class minutes were studiously taken by Betsy Cohen, Secretary, and funds were embezzled by Jay Eustis, Treasurer. The cabinet meetings became notoriously well known. . . .

Following a suggestion by one of the more ingenious class officers, the Juniors selected a jungle theme for their fall dance, "November in Nairobi." The theme was accented by original decorations and entertainment, which included Rick Paul swinging across the stage on a vine which collapsed, and Pam Schreiner, who delighted half the class with her take-off on a nightclub strip tease act. Spirits ran high at the gala gathering, where music was contributed by the "talented musician and hilarious comedian," jumpin' Ed Johnson, who was made famous when his band burst forth with a Bunny Hop which everyone mistook for a funeral march. All in all, the party was a great success and will be remembered as one of the best class parties ever.

After becoming known as the messiest class in the Dining Hall, the Juniors began a campaign to clean up seventh period lunch. The campaign turned out so successfully that the class later was noted as having the cleanest lunch period.

The Junior Girls' Dance was held as usual at the Glencoe Womens' Club and was very enjoyable for all the participants. The theme was Valentine's Day, and the dance was called "Heart Beat." Each couple was given a pair of entwined hearts with their names on them as souvenirs, supplied by the decorations committee. The rest of the decorations were superb and the entertainment comical, especially when seven of the boys came prancing on stage doing the Can-Can, complete with tights and crinolines.

The Junior Prom promised to be in best form this year and excellent committee heads were picked early to start working on the theme, which is a state secret.

The general opinion within the class is that without doubt the Juniors have the most spirited class and expect to accomplish even greater things next year as Seniors.

Sophomore Spirit Shines

INNOVATIONS, IMPROMPTU AND PLANNED, SPICED THE YEAR FROM BEGINNING TO END.

The Sophomores have shown a spirit that almost shamed the other classes; they have been an inspiration to future sophomores and have shown that second-year high school students need not hide in the background and wait for junior and senior years before beginning to use their potential talent. For such a large class they have shown remarkable unity.

The two no-date parties traditionally given by Sophomores were highly successful. The title of the first one was misunderstood by many of the party-ites until they arrived: they didn't know that "23 Days Till" anticipated Santa Claus. The other party, "Spur of the Moment," had several surprises. Not only were there more boys than girls, but most of those present at this costume party wore costumes—an innovation at New Trier costume parties. According to those who were supposed to know, the entertainment was "stupendous."

A dinner for new students began what is hoped will become a happy tradition as New Trier's student population continues to grow. Since the Sophomore Class was swollen by two hundred new students, the steering committee felt that they should get to know the new students better, should introduce them to each other, and should show them what New Trier social life is like. It was a highly successful evening and the effects of the dinner were long-lasting.

Sophomore Thespians had leads in Lagniappe; for example, Kathie Abelson wrote many songs and was also the convincing witch. Stephanie Cotsirilos had a leading role in "High Button Shoes," and Sue Tisdall had a lead in "Cradle Song."

The Sophomores lived up to their usual excellence in service. Pat Cole was the highest seller in the Girls' Club Magazine Drive, and many participated on Girls' Club, Tri-Ship, and Council staffs.

Finally, some of the boys of the class evolved a highly spirited cheering section as the football season progressed. Impromptu at first, they became more and more effective until the captain of an opposing team complained that his signals were being drowned out. This group was an indication of the rousing spirit of the entire class.

The Sophomores missed Secretary Janet Rasmussen after she left in the middle of March to move to Washington, D. C. Scott Soderstrom filled her position until the next election. He had to bear many "funny" comments about masculine secretaries and about getting his account books mixed with the minutes.

The tradition has been that sophomore year is unexciting; not as new and different as freshman year or as important in school affairs as junior or senior years. But the Class of 1964 has done much to shed new light on the subject. Their successes show that sophomore year at New Trier can be wholly as wonderful as the other three.

'65-Quite Alive

THE FRESHMEN PROVED A LIVELY, ABLE CLASS AS THE SURVIVED ORIENTATION.

The Freshman Class, which boasts 1200 students, did an excellent job of adjusting to New Trier despite the fact that there was no Freshman Orientation Day at the beginning of the school year. Senior helpers, upperclassmen, and a willing faculty combined to help the Class of 1965 to become successfully oriented.

Both of the Freshman parties, first the mixer, which was sponsored by the Senior Helpers, and then "65—Dead or Alive," helped to acquaint the students with each other. Much of the success of the second party was attributed to the entertainment, which included Mark Springer and Mark Zimmeroff, who are part of a folk singing trio, and Jim Leonard, who demonstrated his skill on the drums. Jim Zorin's band played as the spirited Freshmen twisted.

The Freshmen learned much about school activities and were enthusiastic participants. The boys were introduced to Tri-Ship and worked avidly at accumulating points. The girls learned about Girls' Club and eagerly signed up for the various committees. GAA initiated many embarrassed but willing girls with a Clash Day. Many members of the class took part in the many musical and dramatic productions throughout the year, including Lagniappe, the Folk Singing Festival, and the spring play.

The Class of 1965 released much of its energy and spirit in sports. Both boys and girls were enthusiastic supporters especially of the football and basketball teams. Pep Club owes much of its success to the bouncy freshmen girls. Being great participants as well as observers, the football "A" squad won all but one game, and the "B" squad finished second in its division. Freshmen also partook of a great deal of skiing, and members of the class could be seen on various Michigan and Wisconsin mountains throughout the winter.

The members of the Freshman Class have much to be proud of both on the serious and lively side. New Trier is certainly indebted to the class for the scholarship fund it set up in memory of Lauren Nylen. The scholarship is to be given to the girl in the class who, after four years at New Trier, has contributed the most to the school.

The class can also take pride in the fine officers that they have chosen. They boast an enthusiastic and lively class, in addition to a fine reputation with which to begin a bright future at New Trier.

STEERING COMMITTEE — FRONT ROW: Levy, Benson, Stossell, Singer, Rogers, White. SECOND: Franche, Van Horne, Saracino, Stiles, Hebson, Goldberg, Ellis. THIRD: Dorfman, Hopkins, Zick, O'Connell, Babize, Crowley. FOURTH: Garrison, Oppenheimer, Woodbury, Hoffman, Pedrick, Dahl. FIFTH: Cline, Compton, Colegrove, Nothmann, Wheeler, Buenger. REAR: Chatain, Barnard, Whipple, FitzGerald, Gallery, Pierchala.

Those who are unaccustomed to the eccentricities of New Trier News staffers were probably astonished to see Chris Chatain sitting on the floor outside IC patiently rewinding a large roll of white paper tape. When the roll was completely rewound, Chris would hold onto one end and toss the entire roll, letting the 50 yards of paper spiral beautifully down the hall. The whole procedure was cheered on by ecstatic members of the News and ECHOES staffs.

Freshmen swing at a class party. (Actipes)

Council extended lounge privileges to freshmen for the first time. These privileges were, however, in effect only during the latter half of the freshman lunch period. The frosh used the occasion to chat, study, and play cards. (Schatz)
